It is with great pleasure that the Scottish Place-Name Society presents on its website this unparalleled collection of east Stirlingshire material painstakingly brought together over several decades by John Reid. It contains all the data necessary for a full place-name survey and analysis of an area which is central both historically and geographically to Lowland Scotland: spatial details, early forms, dates and sources, many of them unpublished, along with the full context in which these forms occur, giving invaluable information about land-holding, land-use and land-value over time for approximately 1,300 named places. It is thus not only a superb resource for the toponymist and historical linguist, it is also an unrivalled quarry for the local historian and genealogist, with the Sources and Bibliography representing what is assuredly the most comprehensive ever for the study area. Presented here as a downloadable and fully searchable pdf, this is the ‘raw data’ behind John Reid’s recent book The Place-Names of Falkirk and East Stirlingshire (2009; full details at the end of the Introduction, below). While this data contains minimum discussion, for some names the author does give probable or possible parallels from other parts of Scotland, referencing any discussions of the analogous names; for others he usefully cites relevant material from DSL dsl.ac.uk, the online version of the two Scots Language Dictionaries DOST and SND.

Given the massive amount of material contained in this document, which was collected over many years and runs to over a thousand A-4 pages, typographical and transcription errors are bound to have crept in. Please inform me if you spot any such errors, and these will be rectified. There will also, needless to say, be small inconsistencies of presentation, but, unless they actually mislead or impede understanding, no attempt will be made at this stage to iron them out.

With this data now widely available, in conjunction with the analysis and discussion of many of these names in Reid 2009, it is a relatively small step to producing a full place-name survey of these nine parishes. In this way Reid has paved the way for a county-wide survey of the place-names of Stirlingshire (within its pre-1975 boundaries) (STL). Stirlingshire consisted of 22 parishes in total when it was dissolved in 1975, and it is these that would provide the framework of any such survey. All the Stirlingshire parishes are listed below in alphabetical order, with their standard three-letter abbreviations,1 as well as some brief notes. In addition to Reid’s nine parishes (given in bold in the list) another three have been subjected to expert toponymic analysis, in two University of Glasgow PhD theses:

This includes the parish of Kippen KPN, formerly partly in STL, partly in Perthshire (Menteith) (PER), but after 1891 entirely in STL.

The initials of these three toponymists have been added [in square brackets] after the relevant parishes in the list below. This leaves only 10 parishes, just under half of the total, in need of expert toponymic attention, and these are given in italics in the list.

- Airth AIH [JR]
- Baldernock BDK [PD]
- Balfron BFN
- Buchanan BUC formerly Inchcailleach
- Campsie CPS including Antermony AMX [PD]

1 Those 3-letter parish-abbreviations which contain X indicate that the parish in question had ceased to exist several centuries before the final dissolution of the civil parishes in 1975.

2 Also contained in John Reid’s data.
Introduction

These notes and data have been compiled over a period of about thirty years. When they were begun there was no intention to publish them; indeed there was no intention of any kind. Their origin, like so many things, was due to curiosity and the collection in the early years was as structured as my untutored approach to stamp collecting when a boy. Lacking a formal discipline meant that notes were written in various jotters, notebooks, scraps of paper and diaries. Eventually, they were entered into an increasing number of loose-leaf folders in handwritten form, the earliest being laid out with a page to a parish, then several pages to a parish before the realisation came that this was a monster; one that needed greater control. Visually, at least, the acquisition of a typewriter (and many bottles of correction fluid) brought a new order; one that was to be advanced with the arrival of the computer age.

Assembling this material in some sort of order was only one problem I had to face in pursuit of the genie I had let out of the bottle. Living in Falkirk meant there was no easy access to sources; to do most of my research involved countless trips to Edinburgh or Glasgow. But it wasn’t just the logistics that provided obstacles: as can be imagined, not having studied Latin was a huge stumbling block which had to be overcome. This was done, for the most part, with a dictionary, much perseverance and the kindly forbearance of the Classics Master of the school in which I taught. I believe that a level of aptitude was obtained that allowed me to get the gist of charters and sasines provided the scrivener had stuck to the script. Frequent departures from it often led me into murky waters fraught with perils that must surely lead to my severe embarrassment; but, happily for me, this could only happen if I were able to recognise the end result. Which brings me to the point of this tak tent: it is to forewarn all who use these notes. As far as possible

Not only has John Reid’s work laid solid foundations for all future work on Stirlingshire, his willingness to make his rich data available in this way is generous and inspirational. I would like to express sincere thanks to him on behalf of the membership of the Scottish Place-Name Society, as well as of all those working on any aspect of the origin and development of place-names in Scotland and beyond.

I have attempted to signal documents translated from Latin by me with the use of [L] preceding the passage. In many instances this will appear superfluous but the use of ‘replace all’ is the most likely culprit on these occasions. It must be pointed out that, in the process of simultaneously translating and transcribing it was Scottish equivalents that came to mind and so, for example, ‘All and Haill’ rather than ‘All and Whole’ will be found along with other vernacular words and terms in the translations. Another problem, albeit a lesser one, was reading secretary script. A few years prior to retirement, I attended the extra-mural class on ‘Reading Scottish Handwriting’ at Register House in Edinburgh and then reinforced this by repeating the exercise immediately following retirement. I believe I had two advantages in this area.
Firstly, my aptitude in visual art allowed me to view the letter forms as design elements. The other was that for many years I have been using typescripts of the six volumes of the records of the baron court of Falkirk and Callendar as a source for both local history and place-name studies and this frequent exposure to seventeenth century Scots meant that I had less difficulty transcribing the language of the texts we dealt with than did many of my classmates (particularly the two ladies from Morningside). For these reasons I feel more confident in presenting that particular strand of material.

The leading line for each place-name has the head-name in upper case letters, which is followed by,

1. Where appropriate, a hash symbol (#) to indicate that the name, as far as can be ascertained, is now obsolete.
2. The abbreviation for the relevant Civil Parish. These are:
   - AIH Airth
   - BKX Bothkennar [since the 18th century part of GRM]
   - DNY Denny
   - DPC Dunipace
   - FAK Falkirk
   - GRM Grangemouth
   - KSY Kilsyth
   - LRB Larbert
   - MAS Muiravonside
   - SLM Slamannan
   - A four-figure National Grid Reference (NGR). When applied to rivers and streams this is at the mouth, the confluence with a larger water course, or the place where the name changes.
   - The form used for accuracy of locations is a simplified version of that used by Simon Taylor in The Place-Names of Fife [PNF]: a numeric value within square brackets following the NGR is used to indicate the degree of accuracy: [1] for absolute accuracy, [2] assumed on the basis of contextual evidence, [3] places it within any adjacent kilometre square while [4] shows that it is or was within the given parish.
   - Where ascertained, a six-figure NGR

Early forms of each head-name are given in bold in the relevant entries.

An extended bibliography is included for the reason that not all of the sources found in the notes are quoted in the book (Reid 2009). In the instance of General Roy’s Military Survey the date has been rounded off to 1755 which I believe should give ±2 years accuracy and, similarly, Pont’s map of Stirlingshire is simplified to 1590.

All of the place-names are touched upon at one level or another in my book *The Place-Names of Falkirk and East £3.01 pp).

1723 Macfarlane f.412 Another [bridge] a little south west from Airth called the Abbetown bridge of two arches upon the road between Airth and Falkirk 1865 OSNB Abbeytown Bridge A small stone bridge of one arch over the Pow Burn, it is so called from an abbey having once stood in its vicinity, but so completely has the work of destruction been done at the Reformation that even its site cannot now be pointed out. This bridge was erected about twenty years ago upon the spot where an old one stood, no vestige of which now remains. The old name is however still retained but applied to the bridge now existing.

Stirlingshire No 460 records the panel on the existing bridge as:

FOUNDED UPON/WOOD AND/REBUILT BY THE/SHIRE 1726

In the 12c David I as part of his grant to the monastery of Holyrood, gave the Kirk of Airth and twenty six acres of land to that foundation. The abbey's land-holding was evidently subsequently added to and the bridge name would suggest the existence of a township in the area.

AIRTH PARISH

PARISHES of MEDIEVAL SCOTLAND, IAN COWAN, SCOT.REC.SOC. EDINBURGH 1967

Diocese: St Andrews; deanery: Linlithgow

[1128 Holyrood] The church of Hereth was granted to Holyrood by David I and confirmed to the abbey by Robert, bishop of St Andrews, c1130 (Holyrood Liber, nos. 1-2). A vicarage settlement took place in 1275, the parsonage thereafter remaining with the abbey (ibid no. 75; MS Book of the Assumption of Benefices, GRH, Edin., 104, 163-4; Airth Writs nos. 26, 49)

1580 RMS v 85 parochia de Airth Papers relating to the action between the minister of the parish of Airth and the heritors thereof: (1) Scheme of the proven rental of the parish of Airth. Dated 27 July 1771. (2) Rental of the parish of Airth and account of stipend presently paid to the minister of Airth. Dated 1771. (3) Copy of Rectified Locality of the stipend of the parish of Airth. Dated 17 July 1776. 1771-1776

1776 GD65/223 The parish of Airth is in the presbytery of Stirling, synod of PER and Stirling. It is generally supposed that the word Airth is derived from the Gaelic ard or ardhe, signifying a hill, and if this supposition be correct, it furnishes strong grounds for the opinion that the parish, which for the most part presents a complete level, owes its name to what is well known by the appellation of the Hill of Airth. It is bounded on the north by the Forth; on the east by the same river; on the south by the parishes of Bothkenner and Larbert; and on the west by the parish of St Ninians. With the exception of the Hill of Airth, and the rising grounds of Dunmore Park, the parish forms an entire plain. And, although there are no records for enabling us to fix the precise origins, yet, from the strata of shells found at no great depth throughout the whole of the low ground, it may be reasonably inferred that those once formes the bed of the river, and that vessels were to be seen spreading their white sails to the wind, where the husbandman now pursues his peaceful occupation. As an historical incident of some importance, it may be mentioned that, in 1817, when cutting the line of road which leads from Airth to Stirling the workmen came upon the skeleton of a whale. The skeleton was found to the north of the mansion house of Dunmore Park, and upwards of a mile from the bank of the river. It was traced to the extent of 75 feet. Falkirk is the nearest market town, distant six miles. There are two villages, Airth and Dunmore. The length of the turnpike road in the parish is about 8 miles. The situation of the parish church is centrical, being about 3 1/2 miles distant from the northern extremity of the parish, and nearly as much from the southern. It was first opened for public worship on the 20th February 1820, and consequently it is in excellent repair. It is built for the accommodation of 800 individuals. The sittings are all free, the tenants being accomodated by their respective landlords, and about 60 sittings set apart for the poor. The manse was finished in 1815. The glebe, including the site of the manse and garden, is upwards of 10 acres in extent. The stipend is 18 chalders of victual, half barley, half meal, payable by the highest [heritors?] of the County; and 8L 6s 8d for the Communion elements.

There is a Burgher meeting house in the parish. The minister is paid from the seat rents and collections. Stipend allowed about £100 per annum. Statistical Account for 1842

The parish contains about 6388 Statute Acres. there are no detached portions of Airth parish, and there are no detached parts of any other parishes within it.

The vicarage of Airth belonged Holyrood Abbey. Its church was dedicated to St Peter. A fair of St Peter was held at Airth. [FASTI 1923]

A small village pleasantly situated at the foot of Airth Hill, and a quarter of a mile from the Firth of Forth. The houses are mostly two storeys and tiled. A good number of them in bad repair, and a few in ruins. It contains three churches, two schools, a post office, and five public houses. Population in 1851 was 517. The villagers are chiefly employed among the farmers in the neighbourhood. William Graham esq., Airth Castle, principal proprietor. What is known as Airth Harbour is in a dilapidated state that even small boats cannot approach it with safety.

What is known as Airth Harbour is in a dilapidated state that even small boats cannot approach it with safety.

A square pillar surrounded by a flight of steps on an octagon pedestal. It is surmounted by an antique figure, and bearing the coat of arms of the Elphinstone family who were at one time extensive proprietors in the parish. The date 1692 is on it, but it is evidently of an earlier period.

AIRTH CASTLE  A large and irregularly built mansion, part of which was erected as far back as the 13th century, and about 40 years ago a handsome modern front was added to it on the north side. The name of Wallace is associated with Airth Castle as tradition states that it was here he surprised and slew a party of English soldiers who garrisoned it and this incident is partly borne out by one of the towers of the building being still called Wallace's Tower. The southern part of the building presents an aspect duly antique and medieval, with its angular turrets, small windows, slate roof, and the usual serrated gables of old Scottish mansions. The grounds and approaches are remarkably fine. Property and residence of William Graham Esq., by whose ancestors it has been possessed for centuries.

Notice of Bill ... to regulate and maintain a Ferry from Kincardine to a certain place called Higgins Neuk, for erecting and maintaining piers and other necessary works, or reconstructing, repairing and keeping in repair those already erected, increasing tolls, purchase of houses and gardens etc.

1888
The cattle boat during tryst time was towed backwards and forwards on a hired tug boat.
The cattle boat was 50 feet long, flush decked with a rail four feet high all round except for a hinged portion that was lowered down to the level of the pier, so that the animals could walk aboard.

The railway bought the ferry and restricted it to foot passengers and cyclists.

1936
The Silver Link bridge was opened and the ferry passed out of existence.

1773 NLS MS10865 (13) Airth Mill taken over by Robert Archibald, a new tenant. Graham pursuing relatives of deceased tenant for payment of repairs. Estimate of mason work required given by Thomas Paterson of St Ninians. However, it was claimed that this was for a new ashlar gable to replace one which was sound and not leaning. Also included a damhead - "The damp was never the work of a tradesman, but a parcel of stones thrown in as they appear at present, and the thirle is in use to uphold such, and a short while of a day will rickle it up as well as ever it was". New doors not really required, merely to maintain and leave in a good condition the miln, kiln, dambs & damheads.

1773 NLS MS10876 (58) 12 Nov. Mill dams, damheads, houses, etc should all be inspected before a new tenant takes over, as they should be in a sufficient habitable and tenantable condition at the beginning of a lease. Previous tenant's heirs (Hodge) refuse to allow this and so it will be necessary to "give a petition to your own Barron Baillie, setting furth, that by the tack granted by your father to Arch. Hodge, he became bound, at removing from the subjects set to him, to leave the mill dams, damheads, houses & c and the machinery & utensils belonging to the mills in a sufficient heritable, tenentable and workable condition but that the said Arch, Hodge being now dead and his heirs removed from the possession of the subjects set, these subjects are not left in the condition required by the tack, on the contrary, that they are in very bad order, yet his heir refuses to name a man to be joined to one to be named by you to inspect the said subjects, and ascertain what it will cost to put them in sufficient order and condition. Therefore craving that the Baillie will appoint two skillful men to visit and inspect the said subjects, and to report in writing what it will cost to put them in sufficient order & condition and that the Baillie will decern Hodge's heir to pay you what ever sum the valuators shall report the expence to be..." Alexr Milne, Carron.

1784 NLS MS10876 (285) 4 Dec. "You may perhaps recolect that several years ago I spoke to you on the view I then had of running away moss through Mr Cunningham's Estate of Throsk for permission to take the waters of a well and what other waters go from my grounds of Cowie to your mill at Airth at such time as you had plenty of water so as to be able to spare them without inconveniencing your mill, the scheme for running away moss did not at that time take place: having now settled on a plan with Mr Cunningham for the running away the moss I beg leave to renew my application..." Wm Murray, Polmaise.

c.1798 NLS MS10854 (235) "Articles of the sett of the subjects after mentioned belonging to William Graham of Airth Esquire, viz All and Hail the said Wm Graham his miln and kilns of Airth with the murtles, sequels, knaveship, bannock and other dues priviledges & services used and wont and hail sucken belonging thereto with the houses, barns, stables, byres, cotehouses and yards belonging thereto, together with the whole lands & teinds thereof lately possessed by the deceast Archd Hodge tenant of the said Mills of Airth, except the rig called Hodge's Rig, which is hereby declared not to be included in the said sett but expressly excepted therefrom, and with the whole loans, ditches, stanks, grass, mill and lands, as the same were lately possessed by the said deceased Archd Hodge & his cottars, & extending to thirty seven acres two roods & twenty five falls Scots measure or thereby, exclusive of Hodges Rig, with the piece of grass ground between the two bridges called the Tongue and with the priviledge of the moss and commonty upon the moss of Airth, for casting, winning, leading & away taking of peats, turves & divots for the service of the said mill, kilns, house and hail other pertinents belonging or which were in use to belong to the said mills, lands, houses and others... 1825 NLS MS 10857 (201) Jan 25: David Nicol, 73 years old, stewart, miller and residenter at Airth Mill for upwards of 50 years, considered that all the water of the different springs and groundless wells were the property of the Mill. Those who had previously diverted part of this water were forced to remove their dams.

1825 NLS MS 10857 (21) Estimate of repair costs: includes thatch for barn, dwelling house, miln, big kiln, little kiln, house next to the dam (dryster's?), 3 houses below the brae. Also a pan for big kiln and 3 houses.

1825 NLS MS 10857 (23) Duties of thirle only include annual cleaning of miln dam and leading home of miln stones when necessary.

1825 NLS MS 10857 (24) Last time the thirles carried stones for the damhead was some 47 years ago, which means that Archibald had never drawn upon this as a right during his tenancy.

1825 NLS MS 10857 (25) 100 carts of stones & 20 men required to repair the damhead.

both Eng. and Sc. is that of a ditch, an excavation (i.e. something dug out), but this sense has been lost in Sc. since 16th cent., the secondary sense of a wall (i.e. what is thrown up by digging) becoming very common after 1530.

Saving the Dunmore parks extending to about 200 acres and the lawn surrounding Airth Castle consisting of 70 acres there is little or no pasture. There are between 300 and 400 acres of moss some of it to the depth of 16 feet covering ground of most excellent quality. Part of the moss is covered with a thriving plantation whilst by far the greater part of it is in the hands of tenants or as they are called Moss Lairds who by dint of hard labour are gradually removing it. They are paid for the land when cleared at the rate of L 24 per imperial acre whilst the land so cleared is measured off once every four years and a rent exacted for it amounting to about L 2 per acre.

(Ex Simon Taylor’s correspondence)

Letham itself derives from G leathan ‘broad slope’. See Watson, 1926, 284 and 518 (note). This is a common place-name element in eastern Scotland. In Fife it is found for example in Letham CRA (PNF 3), Lethans DFL (PNF 1), Letham MML (PNF 4), Letham IKG (PNF 1) and Letham SCO (PNF 2). All are situated on marked slopes.

POTTERFIELD  # AIH NS8987 [4]

1791 AOS 2042  Potterfield, parish of Airth

Note:Pottery was produced on the Estate of the Earl of Dunmore near Airth, in Stirlingshire, from the 1790s. At that time, it was a typical estate pottery, producing bricks and tiles for building repairs, and domestic pots for local use. All of its wares were made from the carse clay, dug on the estate, a process which unearthed 8000 year-old whalebones, deposited on the Carse of Stirling by a tsunami or giant tidal wave. The early wares were not particularly distinctive.

Note: Keir is an anglicised form of British caer. As keir it is a common element in place-names, particularly in places where the remains of early native forts are present. However, Watson [CPNS p.366] observes that there can be confusion with Gael. caithair. Johnstone (PNS) believed that in this instance the reference was to the Roman fort at Castlecary which lies at a considerable distance to the south of Bankier, however, without doubt the name derives from the now lost fort at Bankier described in Stirlingshire No. 498 as an earthwork, the site of which may formerly have been known as Dunglass or Dunbass.

1845 NSA  the upper division of the parish which is called Temple Denny

Note 1: Templaria includes the following as being parts of Temple Denny: Garvald, Garvald and Cochranes Mailling, East and West Borland, Garth, the mill of the barony of Denny, Hillhouse, Drum, Greens [of Denny], Sandyhill, the common muir of Denny.

Note 2: Denny Abbey is a former abbey near Waterbeach, six miles (10 km) north of Cambridge in Cambridgeshire, England. The site, on an ancient road between Cambridge and Ely, was settled by farmers as early as the Roman period. A group of Benedictine monks, governed from Ely, moved here from their waterlogged monastery at Elmeney (a vanished settlement about a mile to the northeast) in the 1150s, at the suggestion of Duke Conan IV of Brittany. They built a church, Denny Priory, which opened in 1159. The crossing and transepts are the only parts of the original Priory that remain today. In 1169 the monks returned to Ely and the site was handed to the Knights Templar. The Templars built a number of additions, including a large Norman-style arched doorway and an infirmary. By the 1290s the Knights had lost their power, and in 1308 King Edward II had the entire order arrested and imprisoned, confiscating their property. Denny was given to the Hospitallers, who took no active interest in the property.

Stirlingshire No. 498 Earthwork, Bankier (Site). … The unknown author whose note is preserved in Macfarlane' concludes his list with a structure "over against Castle Carry at Dunglass'. No place bearing this name has been noted in the lands N. of Castle Cary, and it might have been thought that the name Dunglass was applied to the structure at Bankier; but Pont includes in his inventory two names, "Bankyr" and "Dunbass", and despite the difference in spelling between "Dunglass" and "Dunbass", it may be supposed that both referred to one and the same structure and that therefore Bankier was distinct from this. Sibbald shows "Banker" at this place.

HERMITAGE - THE # DNY NS7584 [1] sic 1879) NS756844

1841 NSA In the division called Temple Denny, and within a mile of the new bridge over Carron, on the road to Fintry, about five miles west from Denny, there is a cascade called Auchinlilly-lin-spout. In the first year of the present century, the wild natural beauties of the spot were transformed into a sort of fairyland, by the genius of Robert Hill, Esq., W/S. Edinburgh, who had purchased the lands of Forest Hill, of which it is a part. A rustic cottage of whinstone, with the angular points facing one in all directions, was built on the very margin of a deep fissure, through which the waters of the Carron flow, to be tossed over the rock of Auchinlilly, within perhaps six yards of the heath covered cottage. There were a kitchen, a cellar, and other apartments; and also a stable was dug chiefly out of the rock, below the level of the floor of the cottage. On that floor, were a handsome dining-room, drawing-room, and two small bed-rooms. A spacious window in the dining-room fronted, westward, the rushing waters as they fell over the rock into the fissure, in their course to the spout. The river was seen, for some way up its channel, diffused in comparative largeness of expansion, and studded with tiny rocks, which might be reached when the waters were low. At other times, the river, swollen by the rains around Muckle Bin, from which it takes its rise, and by the various feeders of the Carron between the Bin and Auchinlilly, rushing forward in roaring majesty, presented a magnificent spectacle from the dining room window. On one occasion, the stream having suddenly risen much above its usual elevation, struck the dining-room window with its surges, and, increasing in strength, burst the window, and, rushing into the kitchen and cellar, made a new cataract over the rock adjoining the spout, into the channel of the river. No lives were lost. The damage was speedily repaired, and, to prevent in future such accidents, a deep excavation in the rock was made in front of the cottage, through to its east rocky banks, sufficient to receive any future overflowings. It was arched over, and thereby easy access, as formerly, to the entrance to the cottage was provided. The banks on each side of the river were planted; walks were made along their sloping sides, with resting-places at proper stations, for enjoying the picturesque beauties of the scene. A carriage way from the turnpike, from Denny to Fintry, was formed down to the cottage. A bridge of plank, close to the spout, was thrown over the fissure, which divides Denny parish from St Ninians, to give access to the garden on the other side. For a time, it was the resort of the curious, who came even from a distance to see and enjoy the scenery of the Cliffs of Carron, the name by which it was known. A mother's fear for her offspring, amidst so many perils, soon made the amiable and accomplished lady of the property, a stranger to its beauties. The last interesting inhabitant of this once enchanting and still beautifully wild place, was the widowed sister of the amiable Graham, the Sabbath poet. Since she left it, some dozen years ago, it has gradually decayed, and has at the present only the ruins of its beauty remaining. It is now the property of Archibald Wishart, Esq., W.S. Deputy-Keeper of the Register of Sasines, Edinburgh.

1879 Gillespie p 95 Two miles further on its course [the Carron], we have the Auchen-lilly-linn, which, when the river is in flood, and a triumphant torrent sweeps down the glen, is a cataract almost unsurpassed for the roar of its liquid thunder and the grandeur of its storm of spray. The ruins of the Hermitage, too, are to be seen firm as any rock in the centre of the stream. During the summer months, this secluded nook is naturally a great resort of local pic-nic parties.

1879 Gillespie p 97 But once down upon the Carron, the scene in its wild rocky grandeur mast take many, as it did ourselves, by surprise. It is, from river bank to river bed, a strikingly picturesque spot. The Hermitage, now utterly desolate - roof fallen, windows gone, and crumbling gables ivy and lichen draped - was built by a Mr Hill, of Edinburgh, whose master-passion must certainly have inclined to the delights of shrieking solitude. It is a most romantic building, and was regularly occupied until 1840. Shortly after that period, a reservoir situated further up the river, broke through its embankments, when the terrific down-rush of water carried away much of the masonry of the deserted house.

Note: Obviously a perpetuated scribal error. Within these charters it becomes obvious that the lands known as the Chapel Lands, or Kirklands, sometime described as being comprised of Cuthel and Cuthelbrae, are missing. It looks, therefore, as though this might be an error for Cuthelbrae.

1829 DCS Denovan Printfield Company, for Printfield and Gunnershaw Mills
1846 Lewis Denovan, a village, in the parish of Dunipace, county of Stirling, 5 miles (W. N. W.) from Falkirk; containing 104 inhabitants. This village, which is chiefly inhabited by persons employed in calico-printing works, is situated on the north bank of the river Carron, amidst scenery of pleasingly picturesque character, the effect of which is heightened by the graceful tower of the parish church rising above the surrounding foliage, and the handsome residence of the proprietor. The works were established by Mr. Adam, in 1800, and afford employment to about 400 persons, of whom the greater number are resident in the town of Denny, on the opposite side of the Carron. In addition to these persons, engaged in the regular printing departments, are nearly 200 children, chiefly girls, of whom some are occupied in attendance on the printers, and others in sewing and fringing shaws.

1293 Newbattle 236 mill of Stenhouse in the barony of Dunipace
1301 Bain v, 262 Privy Seal writ from Edward [I] to the treasurer or his lieutenant and the barons and chamberslains of exchequer. The king complains that he is still seriously short of money, so that none of his promises to pay his troops have been kept and many men have deserted. This situtation grows worse daily. But for lack of money, he would have completed the bridge across the Firth of Forth; he is sure that if he had crossed ‘this season’ he would have done such exploit against his enemies that his business would have quickly reached a satisfactory and honourable conclusion. ... since the king intends to spend the winter in Scotland - writ signed at Dunipace

At about the same time (c. 1398) a question of possession arose as to four oxgates of land within and without the town of Dunipace, within the Earl’s barony of Harbertshire in Stirlingshire, which were claimed by the abbey of Cambuskenneth and John Keir. At the instigation of the latter the Earl of Douglas for some time displaced the abbot and convent in their occupancy, but afterwards, on inspection of the charters produced by them, he, as overlord, expelled Keir and caused the monks to be reinstated in their property. [Note mentions that the question was re-opened 30 years later by John Keir’s son but the abbey won.]

Memorial of John Forrester, factor on Dunipace, describing the ruinous state of the mansion house, which Lady Dunipace, who had lived many years in Edinburgh, had taken possession of without titles or order, and through mis management of her funds has rendered her circumstances so deplorable that, altho’ regularly paid £27.15s 62/3d half yearly, her servants are driving out and disposing the iron bars or grates of the windows, pulling down the roof (of which a great part had lately fallen in) and tearing up floors for firewood. That no purchaser of the estate will advance a penny in consideration of the house, the roof being quite rotten, and the walls extremely insufficient and likely to fall, and scarcely a window in the whole. Thinks it better to take down the slates and any part of the roof yet standing, and sell these with floors, joist and other material. 16 Janr 1754 Barons displeased with the factor for allowing the Lady Dunypace to take possession of the house after the forfeiture of the late Sir Archibald Primrose and order the house to be taken down, and the materials disposed of for the benefit of all concerned. 5 Feb 1754

1582 Buchanan,

Ad laevam Carrontis duo terreni sunt tumuli hominis opera (ut res indicat) aedificati, vulgo Duni Pacis appellantur.

1819 Webster

The Carrón after it leaves its source flows towards the SSE watering the Carron Bog in its progress leaving which it rushes over the Auchinlilly linn spout. From this it continues its course eastward giving motion to 3 paper mills above Denny and watering 2 large printfields below it winding through the bonny banks of Carron water long since famed in song. It passes near the hills of Dunipace and the site of the ancient Roman structure called Arthur’s Oven.

1841 NSA

Name.-This parish takes its name from two beautiful earthen-mounts called "the Hills of Dunipace," situated in a small but beautiful plain, traversed by the river Carron. They are about sixty feet in height, and both together cover about two Scots acres. Buchanan says their name is derived from- Dun or Dunum, the Celtic word, signifying a hill or tower on a hill, and the Latin word pax, -peace. Other etymologists, say with much more probability, that the name is derived from two Celtic words, Duin-na-Bais, or Duna bas, (pronounced pas,) hills or tumuli of death. In writs issued by Edward I. of England, at Dunipace, 14th October 1301, it is written Donypas. Buchanan, and most historians after him, say that these hills are artificial. He adds, that they were raised to commemorate a peace concluded between Donald I. and the Roman Emperor Severus, in the early part of the third century. These opinions appear to be wholly untenable. Any lengthened discussion on this subject being inconsistent with this work, we merely mention, that, in the immediate neighbourhood, there are several similar though less remarkable earthen mounts. About two miles to the westward of these hills, there was a very beautiful one about forty feet in height, and covering nearly three roods of ground, said also to be artificial. this hill was mutilated, from time to time, for the purpose of repairing roads and other purposes. It was entirely removed about six years ago, to form an embankment on the turnpike road near Denny bridge. The strata of which this hill was composed, were carefully observed during its removal. These were so regular, and as if rising out of, and gradually returning again to similar strata in the circumjacent level ground, as to afford conclusive evidence that the hill was not the work of man. On the top of this hill, and about three feet below the surface, was found a coffin or tomb, composed of five large unwrought stones, in which were the bones of a human body, scull and teeth not much decayed. Along with these, was a vase of coarse unglazed earthenware, containing a small quantity of material resembling the lining of a wasp's nest, probably decayed paper or parchment, which in the lapse of ages had assumed that appearance. No conjecture could be formed about the individual here interred, tradition being entirely silent on the subject ; but this circumstance corroborates the opinion of some writers, that the hills of Dunipace might have been used as burying-places for ancient chiefs. For, previous to the erection of bridges in this district, the ford in the vicinity of these hills was the principal passage over the Carron, and would be the scene of many a bloody conflict between hostile armies. Hence the appropriateness of their name, "hills of death."*

1879 Gillespie

Three miles westward upon the north bank of the Carron, stand two beautiful mounds called the hills of Dunipace, which are taken notice of by most of our historians, as monuments of great antiquity. Their whole structure is of earth; but they are not both of the same form and dimensions. The more easterly one is perfectly round, resembling an oven, and about fifty feet in height. The other, at the foundation, is nearly of a triangular shape, but the superstructure is irregular; nor does the height of it bear any proportion to the extent of the base. Buchanan calls the western mound the smaller. His memory here, however, had quite failed him, for there are at least four times the quantity of earth in it than is in the other. These "hills" are unmistakably not artificial. But in times long past, they may have been put to some military use, as from their form and isolated position they are eminently fitted for fortification. Here and there for miles along the banks of the Carron are many steep gravel knolls, cut out by the action of its waters; and these Dunipace mounds have in all probability been similarly isolated, as here the short but impetuous river, whose upper course is a rapid descent, sweepingly strikes a plain.

1979 AS&M (FD) 116

Possible motte. Large steep sided mound about 100 m in diameter and 20 m high. The flat summit is about 20 m in diameter. The presence of a surrounding ditch is indicated in an 18c account.

DUNIPACE - PARISH OF

1621 RMS viii 124 parochia de Donypace

Diocese: St Andrews; Deanery: Linlithgow: In origin a chapel of Kirkton, Stirling, it passed with its mother church of Eaglais Ninnian to Cambuskenneth by the grant of Robert, bishop of St Andrews 1140 x 58 (Camb. Reg., nos 25, 109). In 1163, however, Pope Alexander III confirmed the chapel of the castle of Dunipace to Dunfermline, and this led to a controversy between Dunfermline and Cambuskenneth, which ultimately resulted in a decision in favour of the latter, Dunipace continuing to be regarded as a chapel (Dunfermline Registrum, nos 215, 237, 239; Camb. Reg., no 118). Throughout the thirteenth century the church continued as a chapel of Kirkton, but had achieved parochial status before 1426/7. Both parsonage and vicarage tiends remained with Cambuskenneth, while the cure was possibly served by a curate (Ib., nos. 85, 87-8, 117)

Mr Peat, the tenant of Kirklands until the late 1980s, gave the information that Gunnershaw was part of Kirklands and located it around NS827833. He was 95 in 1986 and had been in Kirklands with his father from the age of 10. The location outlined in RS59/4 f.21v and RS59/5 f.361 confirms this and also indicates that, without doubt, this is the place that was later known as Saltpans [q.v.].

B charter of confirmation given by Hew Giffard, laird Zester, to John Douglas, son to James, Lord Douglas, namely the baronies of Zester, Mornahme, Duncanlaw, in the sheriffdom of Edinburgh ….. Herbertshire in the sheriffdom of Stirling 1398 Douglas p.345 At about the same time (c1398) a question of possession arose as to four oxgates of land within and without the town of Dunipace, within the Earl’s barony of Herbertshire in Stirlingshire, which were claimed by the abbey of Cambuskenneth and John Keir. At the instigation of the latter the Earl of Douglas for some time displaced the abbot and convent in their occupancy, but afterwards, on inspection of the charters produced by them, he, as overlord, expelled Keir and caused the monks to be reinstated in their property. [Note mentions that the question was re-opened 30 years later by John Keir’s son but the abbey won.]

1407 Douglas 351 Charter by Archibald, Earl of Douglas, Lord of Galloway and of the barony of Herbertsheir, granting to his dearest kinsman, Sir Henry, Earl of Orkney, Lord of St Clair, for his help and counsel, all and the whole his barony of Herbertshire, with the pertinents, in the sheriffdom of Stirling, to be held to the foresaid Earl and Lady Giles (Egidia), his spouse, the granter’s niece, the longer liver of them, and the heirs lawfully procreated or to be procreated betwixt them, in fee and heritage forever, in one whole and free barony, in moors, marshes etc., with pit and gallows etc., bonds, bondages, and their sequels, and the natives, fugitives, and services of free tenants, herithelds, etc., for rendering a pair of white spurs

Hence I went to Halbertshire. This is, a strong high tower house built by the Laird of Roslin in King James the 5th time. The Lairds of Roslin have been great architects and patrons of building for these many generations. They are obliged to receive, the mason’s word which is a secret signall masons have thro’ out the world to know one another by. They alledge ’tis as old as since Babel, when they could not understand one another and they conversed by signs. Others would have it no older than Solomon. However it is, he that hath it will bring his brother mason to him without calling to him or your perceiving of the signe.’

St Alexander - a very obscure saint [the only information comes from an unreliable 17c source - info from RC Scottish Archivist]:

Alexander lived in the 12 - 13c and was related to a Scottish king [unspecified]. He had a sister, Matilda, and they went to France. She founded a hermitage and her feast day is April 11. Alexander is known from two dedications: a fair at Keith, Banfs., and the church at Dunipace. His feast day is August 6.

Note: It has been suggested that this name may have been related to the calico printing industry in the area. However, 1688 is over a century too early.

In the 1840s and 50s Alexander and Janet Kerr lived in the cottage called Saltpans ... on the Carron side there is a gully leading down to the stream [Carron] and in the gully is a group of trees about the site of Pundler’s well from which the family drew water [information from local]. Alex at one time worked in the mill on the Carron and eventually came to manage it. He used it as a lint or linen mill and rented land from farmers to grow the flax he required. Once he bought a bush of hemlock trees. He and his sons cut the trees, stripped of the bark and sold it to the Pharmacist Bennet in Denny for the making of vitriol.
Saltpans is described as having a byre, stable and a large orchard to the rear. James Kerr, son of Alex, married Isobel Campbell who was in service in Dunipace House. They emigrated to Canada. [Kerr] 1578 Leslies History In Bishop Leslie's history of Scotland, written in 1578, I find a reference to a "Kinkairne" and as it is traditionally reported that the district at one time was entirely under forest, it is quite likely that our Kinkairne is referred to but whether it is meant, or the parish of Kincardine further west, the reference, which gives a very graphic description of the original wild cattle of Scotland may be excused and I make no apology for submitting it. Bishop Leslie says: - "In this wood (Torwood) was nocht owlie kye, bot oxne and bules snawquhyte with a mane of a lyone. They maiverwar sa cruyl and wylde that from mankynde they abhored in sik a sorte that quhateuir thing the haundes of men had twechit or the air of their mouthes had blawn upon, or cudit as we speik, from al sik they absteenly mony dayes thiarefter. Farther this ox or bull was sa bauld that nocht owly in his yre or quhen he was provoked walde he ouircum horsemen, but cuin feirit he nothing, naither tyred me commonlie all men to invade baith with horns and feit, the the dogs quiles with us ar maist violent he regardet nocht, but walde clate (tear) him with his cluifes or kaithe him on his hornes. His flexhe was all girssillie, bot of a trimtaist. He was afortymes a frequent beist in this Torwood, but now consumed through the gluttonie of men only in three places is left, in the park of Strieleng, the wod of Cummirnalde and of Kinckairne".

1928 Love IV ii p.108 Although we have not found the name Baxter's Wynd before the year 1655, we think there can be no doubt the passage bore that title long prior to the year mentioned. Another name long ago obsolete by which Baxter's Wynd was known was Westquarters Wynd. This we find as early as 1660, but there is no difficulty in accounting for it. From the close or wynd there must have been an entrance on the east side to the "Great Lodging," the town residence of the Livingstones of Westquarter, and to which a passing reference was made in our article on "Cistern Lane."

But Baxter's Wynd bore yet another name, which we have heard old residenters frequently employ, viz., Post Office Close. In the early years of last century-and we have some grounds for thinking long prior to that time the postal affairs of our town- not then very heavy - were conducted in the western part of the Great Lodging, which explains the name "Post Office Close."

Immediately prior to that time it was known as “McKechnie’s Close” the property in the court having been purchased in 1824 by Robert McKechnie, writer, afterwards Town Clerk of Falkirk. ... But this close, as Mr John Lithgow informes us some years ago, bore a more ancient name than that of McKechnies” or “Blue Bell”. It was known as “The Kiln Alley” from the circumstances, no doubt, that it led up to some malt kilns. ... Most of our readers know the traditional story that in the close named by the Town Council in June 1907 as Galloway’s Close - leading from the Blue bell Court to “Robert’s Wynd” a countryman was “beetled” to daeth on a feeing fair evening. From this circumstance the close was known as “The Beetle’s Howff”. On a quiet evening a peculiar sound could be heard coming from the close ... the ghost of the murdered man. If this is correct, then David I Chrs. i no. 114 must be dated 1140x1152. But if it is the same saltpan, why is it mentioned in two separate charters, and in quite different terms? Eva, the daughter of Alvin, the second Earl of Lennox obtained from her brother, Earl Maldouwen, the barony of Kilsyth, which then formed a part of the earldom of Lennox. She married Malcolm, son of Duncan, Thane of Callendar, in the shire of Stirling. To her and Malcolm, the son of Duncan, her brother Maldouwen granted a charter, dated the day of St Laurence [10th August] 1217, of Glaskell, Brengoene, and a ploughgate and a half of Kelnasydhe with the patronage of the church of Moniabrocd. This charter was confirmed by K. Alex. III in 1251. By another charter without date, E. Maldouen granted to the said Malcolm the whole of Glaskhel and other lands in free marriage with his sister Eva. By Malcolm, Eva had a son Alwin, Thane of Callendar ...

1226 RRS i p. 40

In the reign of Alexander II we have a record of the thanes of Callendar: P., thane of Callendar, witnessed an act of the Earl of Lennox in 1226, and in 1234 the king made over to Holyrood Abbey at ferm all his lands of Callendar which he had retained in demesne when he granted 40 librates there to Malcolm [Duncan’s son], formerly thane of Callendar. This Malcolm was presumably predecessor, if not direct ancestor, of Alwyn of Callendar occurring in Cambuskenneth Abbey records c1260, and of John and Alwyn of Callendar who held the estate for one knight’s service towards the end of the 13 c. We may reasonably infer that Callendar was held by thanes long before Malcolm, its last official thane was bought out by Alexander II. Callendar looks very much like a Northumbrian shire and there seems no reason to regard its thane as a different type from the thane of Haddington.

A mile from this on our left hand we saw Kettelston Stewart, then wheir the famous city of Camelon stood built by Cruthne Camelon first King of the Picts--330 years before Christ--alongs the river of Carron whither the sea also came up, so that yet to this day digging deip they find tackles and anchors and other appartenences of ships. Its thought that when the sea gained in Holland and the Netherlands it retirde heir; so that now its not within 3 miles of this place now. Vespasian in the reign of our Caratacus, 35 years after Christ, took it and sackt it. At last finally ransackt and ruined by Kenneth the 2d in the year of Christ 834. Neir to this place stands Dunipace with the 2 artificiall monts before the gate called Dumnipacis. Heir also is that old building called by some Arthurs Oven, and relicts of the great Wall of Adrian.

Note 1: "The tower house was apparently built to replace an earlier castle by Henry Livingstone of Myddilbynning, West Lothian, shortly before the year 1485. The property was held by the Livingstons of Dunipace in the 16th century and in the first half of the 17th century. By the end of the 17th century it was in the possession of the Baillie family from whom it passed to the Dundases by the marriage of Thomas Dundas of Fingask to Bethia, daughter of John Baillie of Castlecary in 1730. The Marquess of Zetland, who possesses the property today, is a descendant of this marriage." [Stirlingshire]

PSAS Proceedings, Volume 68 (1933-34). 'Turchill' is the form in which the alternative name appears in the Registrum Magni Sigilli. But the Rev. Mr Miller, who has examined the original, informs me that the true reading is 'Curthill,' i.e. Court-hill, implying that, after it had served its primary purpose, the mound had been put to another use. For examples of confusion between c and t, see Proceedings, vol. xxxix. (1904-5), p. 380.

See Stirlingshire i p 173, No. 180

Note: the giving of sasine here indicates that the mottehill was still regarded as the "caput" of the barony at that time.

the lands of Dyke of Westpantaskane ... William Wilsone in Dyke

CDS13 gives Dyke uncompounded on 9 occasions, 11 Dykes and 48 compounded versions with Dyke- as the suffix, of which latter the greater number [19] are with -head. The remaining suffixes, some occurring on more than one occasion were: -abutt, -bar, -barhill, -croft, -dale, -field, -foot, -gatehead, -hole, -lands, -neuk, -raw, -side, -stonend. As a suffix it occurs less frequently. Examples occurring in CDS13 are: Berry-, Black-, Broom-, Croft-, Cross-,

Note: probably relates to Antonine Wall - cf Dykerig 812780

This appears to be associated with Langton and so may relate to Grahamsdyke.

FALKIRK - PARISH
diocese: St Andrews; deanery: Linlithgow

Known formerly as Eglesbrich and later as Varia Capella, the church was confirmed to Holyrood in 1164, the donor apparently being Richard, bishop of St Andrews, who confirmed the grant in 1166. [Holyrood Liber, App. i No. 1, App. ii No. 4]. A vicarage settlement took place in 1251, but the vicarage in turn was annexed to the abbey by Pope Benedict XIII [1394x1419], the cure thereafter being served by a canon from Holyrood, who in this manner retained both parsonage and vicarage revenues [Ib., No.75; GRH Chrs., No 282; RS 435, 184v; CPL x 711; Assumptions 104v, 106v]. The abbey’s possession of the vicarage was constantly assailed by seculars and in 1449/50 an attempt was made to erect a collegiate church on its revenues, but this proved to be unsuccessful [CSSR ii 88 and n; RS 434, 297, 442, 228v]

1908 Love i p.41: The mansion of Forganhall was converted into apartments some years ago ... The large garden, famous for its fruit trees, is now utilised for clothes drying ... So far as we know, no drawing of the original building is in existence. ... What is now named Forganhall was originally part of the lands of Dalders. In 1783 we find Mr William Glen of West Plean seised Oct. 6th in part of Dalders. In Nov. 1784, we find him described as William Glen, late of West Plean, now of Forganhall, and we take it that he either built the house in that year or purchased it, and gave it the name it still bears. The Rev. John Glen M.A., uncle of Mr William Glen of Forganhall was for 52 years minister of Forgandenny, Perthshire, and out of these circumstances arose the name.

SS Forganhall was registered at Grangemouth. She is recorded as carrying immigrants to Victoria, Australia on two occasions, arriving October 1858 and May 1859.

1799 AOS 3746 Sir Thomas Livingstone of Bedlormie and Westquarter – in a Great Lodging in Falkirk –
G.R. 602.148

A brief reference has already been made to the building in which Prince Charles slept on the night after the battle of Falkirk, and at a later date, to his cousin, the Duke of Cumberland. It was known as "The Great Lodging," and was removed by its proprietor, Mr H. B. Watson, bookmaker, in 1899-1900 to make room for more up to date business premises.
The building was probably erected late in the sixteenth century, and belonged to the family of Livingstone of Westquarter. It presumably would take the place of one less pretentious.
At an early part of the eighteenth century that family's affairs became embarrassed and the "Great Lodging," with others, was put for sale in 1721, and a purchaser found in the person of Walter Graham, "Chirurgeon," who had been in practice in Falkirk for at least a decade prior to that, and had his residence probably in the “Great Lodging” towards the close of 1701 he married Henrietta Livingstone, daughter of the Laird of Bedlormie and by her had a numerous family. Our interest present lies in their son Walter, who followed his father's profession, but who, in a rash moment, followed the standard of Prince Charles. We will meet with him later among, the list of local residents who were as ill-guided as himself to follow the Prince. Dr Graham, senior, died in 17371 and Mrs Graham in 1761. She had been described As "a lady whose intelligence and superior manners were long remembered with veneration, and it has been asserted she had Jacobite leanings.

HOSPITAL OF FALKIRK # FAK NS8880 [1] NS886800
1720 GDI/170 iii shows that £10.15.3½ was paid annually by Callendar Estate to “the Hospital”
1723 Macfarlane f.399 It [Falkirk] has an hospital near the west end of the town erected by Earl James about the years 1666 or 67, where the poor are conveniently served with necessaries for life.
1797 OSA vol 19 There is also in the town of Falkirk an hospital for the support of four aged and infirm persons. It was founded and endowed in 1640 by Lord Livingston of Almond and Callendar. This deed was amplified and confirmed by him in the year 1668, after he was created Earl of Callendar. Upon certain parts of the estates which then belonged to his Lordship, there is security given for the fulfilment of the obligation. Moreover, if his Lordship, or any of the successors to his estates should neglect or refuse to fill up any vacancy in this hospital, it is provided by the foresaid act, that, if this neglect or refusal be persisted in after notice shall have been given, in due form to the person or persons then possessing the Callendar estates, then the minister of Falkirk for the time being is authorised to present a proper object of this charity to fill any vacancy which shall be in the circumstances now described. Mr Richard Callander, then minister of Falkirk, and his successors in that office, were, in the above specified deed, made, constituted and appointed patrons of this hospital, and were lawfully authorised to nominate and admit proper poor persons to the benefit thereof in all cases where the said Earl or his successors should refuse or illegally delay to do their duty.

There is in the town an hospital, founded by Lord Livingstone of Almond and Callander, 1640, for the support of aged and infirm women. William Forbes, Esq., M.P., is patron.

It may be conjectured that for a long period there existed a narrow pathway across the Glebe – and on the south side – from Vicars Loan or Street to the west end of the town. There was such a passage in 1738. It is not, however, until the passing of “An Act for Repairing the Highways and Bridges in the County of Stirling” in 1784 that we glean our definite information regarding the thoroughfare we now know as Newmarket Street. --- In 1815 the road was widened opposite the Hospital which was enclosed by a wall running west to the property of Messrs Aitken, brewers. This wall was removed in 1904, when the posting establishment of the late William Scott - now carried on by Mrs Scott - was erected on the Hospital Garden site.

With a view to having more up-to-date premises, Mrs Malcolm with commendable enterprise, built the present Crown Hotel in 1879, which, as stated at the outset of this article, has just been closed. The architect was our late townsman, Mr Thomas B. M’Fadzean, and the building removed to make room for the new Crown Hotel was the Falkirk Hospital.

JENNY MAIRS BURN FAK NS8879 [1] NS884798

1908 Love i p.15 A correspondant writes:— It is just bordering on two thirds of a century since Jenny Mair died ... She was an old woman of no historical account, but the picture of cleanliness who sat at her spinning-wheel, with a plain old-fashioned white mutch on her head; and her house, which stood at the corner of the main road and the burn, with the window on the gable, looking towards where the the new church [Erskine] now stands, was a favourite with many good people. The burn, with its road alongside ... a favourite walk ... constituted 'up by the back o' Jenny Mair's ...

Our own researches go to show that she was the daughter of Michael Muir (not Mair), a very well known citizen of Falkirk more than a century ago, and Janet Livingston, his wife. Jenny was born in 1780. Her father carried on an extensive business as a joiner, and fulfilled several important contracts in the eastern district of Stirlingshire.

<td>The lands then purchased lay on both sides of the Forth and Clyde Canal, the portion on the south side and on part of which Kersehill is erected consisted of three acres two roods and six falls arable land, and that on the north side of that waterway extending to thirty-three falls and four ells, also of arable land. It must have been shortly after the year 1782 that Kersehill was erected by Alexander Ramsay, merchant, and later cashier of the Falkirk Banking Co., as in that year the residence of that family named Mungall, was sold to the Hon Captain Charles Napier and afterwards changed by him to Merchiston Hall. An account of the family of Ramsay of Mungall, which was a prominent one in Falkirk and district from the closing years of the 17th century till well nigh the middle of the last, will be given in the notice of Merchiston Hall. The name Kersehill arose, we think, from the circumstance that it stands on the rising ground above the rich vale of the Carse or Kerse of Falkirk. In recording a marriage of one of Alexander Ramsay's daughters in 1814, the ceremony is said to have taken place at &quot;Carsehill,&quot; and forty years later in another public announcement it is named &quot;Karsehill,&quot; but these spellings have long since ceased, although in the opinion of many they furnish us with the correct pronunciation of the name.</td>

Maggiewoods Loan

1697 PSAS xxxv p.331

The author heard of Roman coins having been found, but the people would not admit they had any; also of the finding of anchors and sea tackle; and he notices the paved way, half a mile long, leading to the Antonine Vallum, " at the end of which stood a great castle, called by the country folks the Maiden Castle, but now little is to be seen of it."

1697 PSAS xxxv p.331

The Roman Way passing through the station is mentioned first in 1697. Where it pierces the Antonine Vallum, it was uncovered in 1894 when Mr Fairlie's villa was built on a prominent mound on the Vallum on the west side of the entrance, which seems to have been the demilune, marked by Hoy, and which was cut down 6 feet to accommodate Mr Fairlie's villa. It was seen by Mr Buchanan, and found to have been well paved and covered with 'channel'. Maiden, perhaps more safely written Maden Castle.—This 'great castle,' described by the anonymous writer of 1697 as being at the Vallum end of the Roman Way, I had supposed was possibly represented on Roy's map, 500 yards north-east of the entrance, by an unnamed oval mound, measuring 1000 by 500 feet on the top

1977 AFS

A motte, known locally as "Maiden Castle", is said to have stood on the N side of the Antonine Wall ditch at this point. this earth-built mound, apparently measuring about 22 m from W to E by 12 m transversely, is reported to have been reduced in height by approximately 2 m when Watling Lodge house was built in 1894.

<td>Of Marion's Well there is scant record. According to tradition, it got its name from Marion Livingston - a nun of the house of Callendar, who in the performance of the sacerdotal vow which kept her from the world, visited the well at intervals, and used its soft waters as a pediluvium. The original well which was built round with stone, stood at the bottom of the Cladden’s Brae, on the bank of the East Burn. It was further protected by a circle of upright slabs - the great resting place of the water maids.</td>

The ground on which the Town Hall is erected was known as “Millhall’s Yard”, and the close leading into the Market Inn from the extreme south entrance to the Lint Riggs, prior to the late improvements, was known as “Millhall Close”, that ground and property being at one time possessed by Norman Livingston of Millhall, who had his town “Lodging” here. In the original rights it was described thus:- All and haill James Livingston’s two fifteenth parts of the Town and Lands of Falkirk”.

In 1801 the ground and house became the property of Dr John Corbet, the yard becoming known as “Dr Corbet’s Garden”, and the close as “Dr Corbet’s Close”.

Dr John Corbet ... He bore a conspicuous part in promoting the vaccine inoculation, the practice of which he greatly contributed by strenuously exerting himself to establish it in Falkirk and neighbourhood soon after Jenner’s discovery was communicated to the public. His house became known as Mount Vaccine.
On being vacated by the Corbet family, Mount Vaccine was utilised as a young ladies school from the close of 1828 ... purchased by Lauchlan Aitken, brewer, Falkirk, John Crawford, farmer, Howkerse and James Wyse, builder, Falkirk, in 1833 “for themselves on account of the other partners of the New Market Company of Falkirk”. Probably about that year it became a licensed house, taking the name “New Market Inn”, which it held until its demolition in 1905.

Place-Names of Ross & Cromarty:
“A pool in the River Carron ABD is: Pollmoral. Watson cites Macdonald (Place-Names of West Aberdeenshire) who collected comparable names: Balmoral, Polmoral on Dee near Banchory, Morall in Stratherne, Drummorrell in Wigtown, Morall and Lyne of Morall in the lordship of Urquart, Morall mòr and Morall beag on Findhorn. --- These examples may not all be of the same origin (Morel at Tomatin, for instance, is in Gaelic Mòirtl), but the second part of Poll-mòrall above can hardly be other than mòrall majestic, noble. The pool in question is one of the largest on the river.”

Note: The terminal “s” is undoubtably a plural given “Upper” and “Nether”, and the use of “Mumrill Mill”

Market Road

1928 Love IV ii p.132

It may be conjectured that for a long period there existed a narrow pathway across the Gelebe – and on the south side – from Vicars Loan or Street to the west end of the town. There was such a passage in 1738. It is not, however, until the passing of “An Act for Repairing the Highways and Bridges in the County of Stirling” in 1784 that we glean our definite information regarding the thoroughfare we now know as Newmarket Street. At a meeting of the Road Trustees, held in the house of James Wyse, vintner, Falkirk, on 28th June, 1785, the opinion was expressed that it would be advantageous to the public if “the back road leading from the Manse to the west end of the town at John Brock's house (the old Crown Inn, where now stands the Royal Bank) were repaired made more commodious for carriages.” A lack of funds made the trustees hesitate, but inquiries being made at the then minister of the parish, the Rev. John Atchison-himself a keen road reformer - as to the sum he would require to give off the necessary ground, he named five pounds. The Trustees immediately closed with the minister's offer, and instructed one of their number, Mr Walter Ferrier of Summerford, to carry out the, widening of the thoroughfare, and for a few pounds annually there- after it was kept in repair. What quantity of ground was granted by the minister is not stated. In 1815 the road was widened opposite the Hospital which was enclosed by a wall running west to the property of Messrs Atken, brewers. This wall was removed in 1904, when the posting establishment of the late William Scott - now carried on by Mrs Scott - was erected on the Hospital Garden site.

"A curious illustration of two different terms lying side by side, which are derived from the same word undergoing different changes, will be found in Forfarshire, where the term Llan for a church appears, as in Lantrethin. It is a phonetic law between Latin and Celtic, that words beginning in the former with pl are in the latter ll. The word Planum, in Latin signifying any cultivated spot, in contradistinction from a desert spot, and which, according to Ducange, came to signify Cimiterium, becomes in Celtic Llan, the old meaning of which was a fertile spot, as well as a church. In the inquisition, in the reign of David I., into the possessions of the See of Glasgow, we find the word in its oldest form in the name Planmichael, now Carmichael; and as we find Ballin corrupted into Ban, and Ballindoch becomes Bandoch, so Plan becomes corrupted into Pan, and we find it in this form likewise in Forfarshire, Panmure and Panbride. In the Lothians and the Merse this word has become Long, as in Longnewton and Longniddrie." (Skene's Four Ancient Books of Wales Chapter ix. The Celtic topography of Scotland, and the dialectic differences indicated by it.)

Although this place, strictly speaking, lay outwith the town, being on the west side of the West Burn, it really should be considered as an urban name. The soapree lay alongside one of the town’s tanneries and the soap was, presumably, a by-product of the tanning industry (lanolin?). The suffix -ree is the same as that found, for instance, in coal-ree.

1788 AOS 1266 Baillie Sword’s Close
1803 AOS 4537 Swords Close
1860 OS Swords Wynd
Love i p.43 One of the oldest family names to be found in ancient documents relating to Falkirk is that of “Sworde”. Others show the Swordes to have been possessed of considerable property in town and district and one of them to have held honourable positions. James Sworde was Procurator-Fiscal of the Regality of Falkirk in 1641, and was holding the office in 1648; John Sworde, Baillie of the Regality court, was sworn and admitted an elder of the Parish Church in 1669; he died December 1696; his wife’s name was Christian Dun ... The Wynd or “closs” lying on the south side of the High Street and running in the same direction to the Howgate, or what was anciently known as the “Burnegait” had the Swordes as residents there in 1654, as we find from a Sasine or feu charter by David Livingstoune of Pantaskine, with consent of Helen Elphingstoune his spouse, to Robert Levingstoune, portioner of Falkirk and Elizabeth Wyse, his spouse. Two hundred years ago it was known as “Baillie Sword’s Close” and was so named, no doubt, as being the residence of the Bailie whom we have just mentioned. In 1698, Humphry Sword, portioner of Falkirk, disposed of the property in Sword’s Close or Wynd to Thomas Muirhead of West Boreland and it became known as West Boreland Close, but the name did not come to stay.

We now deal with the mansion-house of Thornhill and its proprietors and occupants since 1783, giving some notes regarding their descendants. The house stands within its own grounds and lies almost due west from Forghanhall and is also erected on the lands of Dalderse. The first mansion-house of Thornhill of which there seems any record was very different from the present one, which was erected in its stead in 1851-52 by the late Mr Alexander Macfarlane. The present house stands about thirty yards from the site of the old, which stood near the north-west corner of the garden wall. It was a house of no pretensions. devoid of all ornamentation, and bore no date. The first occupant of whom we have any knowledge is William Greig who seems to have become proprietor in 1782.

THREE BRIDGES

FAK NS8580 [1] NS856808

This was a local landmark created by three adjacent railway bridges crossing the Falkirk-Bonnybridge road. The central one carried the main railway line from Glasgow to Perth, the easternmost carried the branch line to Grahamston and Polmont, while the remaining one bore the bridge line to Denny. All three lines converged at Carmuir West Junction. While the last of these has been demolished for several years now but the name persists and is now used to name a roundabout in the area.

And thairfor it wes contrair the deidis mynd that scho suld now vant the land. And that speciall provisioni could nocht be tane away be the act followand.

Replicat the young lady: The act of Pinky Cleuch wes intendit to protect the wyfis and barnes of all men that happinnit to deceis thair, and sui sald haif effect in that pace. For that act can haiff na effect bot in prejudice of thame that aucht to get the landis. And that that claus culd nocht nor sould nocht stope the act, quia etiam non expressis verbis tacite inesset huic actui quia in omnibus assedationibus terre liberre revertantur ad dominum assedantem. Ita censetur in partes tacite agi et decursis annis assedationis (ut predictur). Et de iure expressio eorum qui tacite insunt, nihil operatur. Quod si illa clausula haberet obester acto, sequeretur actum semper fore frustra, et ex eo uxores et liberos occisorum nunquam consequi posse assedationem quinque annorum secundum tenorem eiusdem.

Omnes domini me et Roberto Carnegie excepto, decreverunt hunc clausulam obstare acto in hoc casu; et hoc causante voluntate defuncti quia per expressam illam clausulam videtur voluisse terras reverti ad veteran dominam post mortem suam. Et ideo contra voluntatem ipsius uxorem et liberos non posse pretendere virtute acti novam

BOTHKENNER CHURCH NS903835

1795 AOS 2887 The Heritors of the Parish of Bothkennar, seised Dec. 30. 1794,- in parts of Bothkennar, whereon they have built a new church called the Church of Bothkennar, and Session House, parish of Bothkennar;- on disp. by Thomas Dundas of Fingask

1797 RHP242 Bothkenner Church

1865 OSNB Bothkenner Church - The parish church was built in 1789, the minister’s stipend is about £201.12.10 with a glebe worth £12 per annum. Number of sittings about 300, it is in good repair but has no pretensions whatever to architectural elegance.

BOTHKENNER - PARISH

Diocese: St Andrews
Deanery: Linlithgow

Both parsonage and vicarage fruits pertained to the nunnery of Eccles at the Reformation period. It is possible this church was granted or confirmed to the nuns by Bishop David of St Andrews in 1250x65, when it appears as the church of Bucham (Reports of the Royal Commission on Historical Manuscripts, 12th Rep., App.Pt. viii. nos. 132, 146; St Andrews Lib., xxix - Great Register of St Andrews, No. 60)

In 1900 the parish of Grangemouth was formed from part of the parish of Polmont, part of the parish of Falkirk, and part of the parish of Bothkennar. The remainder of Bothkennar was transferred to Falkirk and thus the parish of Bothkennar was suppressed.

1605 GD65/28 Tack by James, prior of the abbey of Ecclis [Eccles], and the convent thereof, in favour of Alexander Hamilton of Innerweik [Innerwick] and James Hamilton, his eldest son, for their lifetimes, and after their decease for 2 lifetimes and 19 years, of the teinds, parsonage and vicarage, of the kirk and parish of Bothkennar, for yearly payment of £120 Scots. [Signature; seal appended]. 25/4/1605

1643 TE5/446 Papers Relating to Teinds and Teind Administration, Stirlingshire: Bothkennar 1643

1865 OSNB The Parish of Bothkennar is in the County of Stirling, Prebytery of Stirling, Synod of Perth and Stirling.

The word Bothkennar is of Celtic origin, and signifies the small arable fen or marsh - a name highly descriptive of the situation of the parish, which is very small, all arable, and appears at first to have been marshy, from having been made up from the alluvial deposits of the Firth of Forth.

A new church was built in 1789 and it is more than sufficient for the accommodation of the parish. A new manse was built in 1816, at an expense of £1575, and is, to the honour of the Heritors, the best in the County. The stipend is 17 chalders of victual and the teinds are exhausted. The glebe consists of 10 Scotch acres of the best land. There is no village in the parish except a small portion of Carronshore. Falkirk is the nearest market town. The roads are, in general, kept in good repair by the statute labour; and there is easy access to every part of the county.

Miller certainly had enough wealth to retire and this was shown in his property. In 1843 he had bought land at Polmont and built a substantial mansion there called Millfield, now demolished. He had no doubt become aware of the area when he was building the Edinburgh and Glasgow Railway. It is interesting that Polmont station was built adjoining the estate which would have made it easy for Miller to commute to his office in Edinburgh.

1736 CH2/1548 Nun-yeard
1753 RS59/20 f.151 John Miller indweller in Nun Yaird

Note: Johnston of Kirkland [Macfarlane] tells us “Near to the Kirk, about a pair of butts North West is the Nunyeards, a nunerie, in the time of popery, but there is not any vestige of building, but a little country house with a yeard such as are usual in that country for tenants”. Within the same text he informs us that Westerton lies “two large butts” to the west of the kirk. On the basis of this information it may be that the enclosure denoted “ruin” on the first edition of the Ordnance Survey at c NS899835 lies on the site of Nunyards. This enclosure is also depicted, but is unnamed, on the Military Survey.

Note: As well as being the name of a holding, the term ‘salt greens’ was used of the salt marshes skirting the shore of the Firth of Forth, including those along the tidal reaches of its tributaries. Several plans, RHP15411/2, RHP6115 and RHP6109, depict such areas and so name them.

There is no district where there is a greater abundance of springs of wholesome water. Wellshot opposite Auchinvoile, St Mirrens well, south of woodend, and Kitty-fristy well, on the hill road to Stirling, known to all foot passengers, are powerful springs of most delicious water. The mineral spring at Dovecot Wood is now scarcely perceptible. There is one in the glen near Garrel mill.

There is no district where there is a greater abundance of springs of wholesome water. Wellshot opposite Auchinvole, St Mirrens well, south of Woodend, and Kitty-fristy well, on the hill road to Stirling, known to all foot passengers, are powerful springs of most delicious water. The mineral spring at Dovecot Wood is now scarcely perceptible. There is one in the glen near Garrel mill.

1796 OSA p.245 Accordingly in the year 1599 (Mr William Livingston) received inauguraion (as minister of the parish of Monaburgh). At this time he was a considerable heritor in the parish; being proprietor of the lands of Monaburgh. The boundaries of that estate are not well known, but it is certain that the grounds upon which the village stands were a part of them. For Sir William Livingston of Kilsyth, one of the Lords of Session, purchased them from the parson for the express purpose of extending the village, which stood at that time on the banks of the Ebroch. Those new feus were granted along the Garrel Burn, which meets the Ebroch nearly opposite the centre of the village; and of course the new town was called Burnside.

About this period (1665) the village was considerably increased. A new town was built, not along the banks of the Ebroch or Garrel Burn as formerly, but on a rising ground about 200 yards south of those streams, which at that time was called the Moat Hill, as the Lord of the manor had been accustomed to hold courts of justice in that place. This new town of course was called by the title of of the proprietor, Kilsyth. And from that period the whole village obtained that name.

MOAT HILL

1796 OSA p.246

About this period (1665) the village was considerably increased. A new town was built, not along the banks of the Ebroch or Garrel Burn as formerly, but on a rising ground about 200 yards south of those streams, which at that time was called the Moat Hill, as the Lord of the manor had been accustomed to hold courts of justice in that place. This new town of course was called by the title of of the proprietor, Kilsyth. And from that period the whole village obtained that name.

There is no district where there is a greater abundance of springs of wholesome water.
Wellshot opposite Auchinvoile, St Mirren's well, south of woodend, and Kitty-fristy well, on the hill road to Stirling, known to all foot passengers, are powerful springs of most delicious water. The mineral spring at Dovecot Wood is now scarcely perceptible. There is one in the glen near Garrel mill.

There is also extant a prior confirmation by Alexander II, dated 23.10.1237, of the charter by the Earl of Dunbar, bearing to be granted to David de Graham for his homage and service, of the whole waste lands of Dundaff and Strathcarron, which was the King's forest, in exchange for the lands of Gertququer in Dumfries which the Earl by his charter had formerly conferred on David. This is the original grant of the barony of Dundaffmuir, the oldest existing possession of the house of Montrose.

c796 Nennius Carutius postea imperator reedificavit et VII castellis munitit inter utraque ostia: domumque rotundam politis lapidibus super ripam fluminus Carun, quod a suo nomine nomen accepit, fornicem triumphalem in victoriae memoriam erigens construxit

[Carutius when he became emperor rebuilt seven castles between two estuaries: a round house of polished stones on the bank of the river Carun, which is named from him, which was a triumphal vault raised and constructed in his memory]

Nennius 23. Severus was the third emperor who passed the sea to Britain, where, to protect the provinces recovered from barbaric incursions, he ordered a wall and a rampart to be made between the Britons, the Scots, and the Picts, extending across the island from sea to sea, in length one hundred and thirty-three miles: and it is called in the British language Gwal. Moreover, he ordered it to be made between the Britons, and the Picts and Scots; for the Scots from the west, and the Picts from the north, unanimously made war against the Britons; but were at peace among themselves. Not long after Severus died in Britain. One MS. here adds, "The above-mentioned Severus constructed it of rude workmanship in length 132 miles; i.e. from Penguaul, which village is called in Scottish Cenail, in English Peneltun, to the mouth of the river Cluth and Cairpentaloch, where this wall terminates; but it was of no avail. The emperor Carausius afterwards rebuilt it, and fortified it with seven castles between the two mouths: he built also a round house of polished stones on the banks of the river Carun [Carron]: he likewise erected a triumphal arch, on which he inscribed his own name in memory of his victory.

Dumville: The Eastern Terminus Of The Antonine Wall p.295 presented as a gloss on the statement of distance found in the text of Historia Brittonum:

Per.cxxxii. miliaria passuum, id est, a Penguaul-que villa scottice Cenail, anglice vero Peneltun, dicitur usuque ad ostium fluminis Cluth et Cair Pentaloch, quo murus ille finitur, rustico opere Severus ille predictus construxit; sed nihil profuit (Dumville 1977, 22-4; Dumville 1985-, VII; note that the text should probably read 'usuque ad Cair Pentaloch et ad ostium fluminis Glut').
A further addition, immediately following, tells us that another Emperor, unhelpfully named Carucius/Carutius (Karitius in some other versions), renewed the wall; this Emperor is then credited (in an addition which, on the evidence of the capitula, was at one time intended to go into the following chapter) with the building of a triumphal monument by the River Carron;

Carutius postea imperator reedificavit, et. vii. castellis munivit inter utraque ostia; domunque rotundam politis lapidibus super ripam fluminis Carun, quod a suo nomen accepit, fornixem triumphalem in victorie memoriam erigens, constructit.

Note: This has nothing to do with the "blackmills" of the north. In the local context it applies to a mill used for grinding charcoal used in the preparation of green-sand moulds in the iron casting industry. It was associated with Carron Company. See Gibson for similar use of Dunipace mill.

John Reid in Candie

Contract, dated at Linlithgow 5th January, 1708, between Andrew Dick of Compstoun and Patrick Calder, younger, of Reidfuird whereby in order to prevent lawsuits and debates that have arisen and may arise between them relative to the particulars aftermentioned said Andrew Dick, for himself, his heirs and successors, allows to said Patrick Calder, his heirs and assignees free ish and entry through his lands of Candie 'by that road of way' as said Andrew Dick and his foresaids or their tenants shall pass and re-pass to and from the common muir of Morrowingside to Mealings Place or Quarter and that with peats, elding or others to their lands of Reidfuird Nethertoun and Candie, he always keeping his passage by the foot of Candiebrades to his said lands of Candie, and that they shall have no other road or way than that mentioned through said Andrew Dick's lands, and further said Andrew Dick binds himself and his foresaids to set the land water that runs east from Quarter by the east side of Jean's Aiker to alter the same and make it run by the west side of said Jean's Aiker and to refund to said Patrick Calder and his foresaids all damage they may sustain by suffering said water otherways to run than is before mentioned; for which causes said Patrick Calder for himself, his heirs, and successors, allows said Andrew Dick and his foresaids free ish and entry through his lands of Nathertoun by that road or way as said Patrick Calder and his foresaids and tenants shall pass and re-pass to and from the common muir of Morrowingside to their lands of Neathertoun, Candie and Reidfuird with peats, elding or others, to their lands of Mealings Place and Quarter, he always keeping his passage by the east end of Condiebrades to his said lands by that road or way as said Patrick Calder and his foresaids and tenants shall pass and re-pass to and from the common muir of Morrowingside to their lands of Neathertoun, Candie and Reidfuird, and to refund to said Andrew Dick and his foresaids all damage they may sustain by suffering said water to run otherways than is before mentioned; and for that effect to set stones on each side of said burn, allowing said burn three-quarters of an ell for running thereof straight upon the march balk on both lands, the one half running upon him and the other half upon said Andrew Dick, and that if the water break out on other side both parties obliges them to make it equally to run upon equal expenses; as also said Patrick Calder renounces all right he has or can pretend to that moss called the long moss opposite said Andrew Dick's lands, except the casting of peats furth of the west end thereof as he has been formerly in use, but if hereafter said moss shall be found to be a part of said common muir of Morrowingside then said Patrick Calder and his foresaids after division of said muir shall have a proportional part of the said moss effering to his lands in that parish; and both parties bind them and their foresaids equally out of their lands to allow a sufficient quantity thereof for a burn gate on the north side of the dyke of Candie so far as their lands lie opposite by a straight line as the march stones run; all under penalty of £10 Scots on failure. Written by James Waston servitor to Henry Keir, writer in Linlithgow. Witnesses, said Henry Keir and James Wastoun Registered in the Sheriff Court Books of Stirling 21st March, 1709.

Castlehill - A small elliptical hill, one of a series of fortified eminences said to have formerly existed in this locality. On the summit of this hill are three very plainly marked platforms with steep slopes forming a semi ellipses, and evidently arteficial but there are no existing remains to indicate that a Castle or any other building has stood here. Stone Coffins, in the Statistical Account of the Parish, are said to have been found here, but no information can be obtained to confirm this statement, and from the present appearance of the hill it is very doubtful if any excavation sufficiently deep for the discovery has been made on it since the fortifications were constructed.

1741 GD332/73 Renunciation by Agnes Marshall, relict of Patrick Calder of Reidfoord narrating that by Contract of Marriage betwixt them, dated 30th June, 1705, said Patrick bound himself to infeft her in liferent after his death in the lands of Nethertown alias Hemishale part of the £10 lands of Muiravenside together with the little piece of ground of Coxhill called the Creeks, with the liberty of a cartgate through Coxhill to the muir of Muiravenside together also with the proportional part of said muir pertaining to said lands, in which she was infeft by sasine dated 30th June and registered 20th August, 1705, as also that said Patrick by his Bond, dated 26th April, 1735, bound himself in infeft her in an additional liferent in the lands of Duraw, and that in like manner said Agnes Marshall by Contract of Marriage betwixt Patrick Calder of Reidfoord her only son, and Anna Waddell, his spouse, dated 29th October and 1st November, 1739, not only consented to the liferent constituted by said Contract in favour of said Anna Waddell but also in regard saide Agnes Marshall was infeft therein and was willing to renounce the same provided she received an equal liferent from her said son's other lands, which has been granted to her of this dated, therefore she renounces her liferent of the lands of Nethertown and others provided to her by said Contract, dated 30th June, 1705, and also said additional liferent in Bond dated 26th April, 1735; and she and her said son have cleared accounts with regard to her bygone liferents and the money she has uplifted from his tenants with the money he has laid out on other accessions for her and Margaret Calder, her only daughter. Written by Henry Waddell, writer in Edinburgh. Dated at Nethertown 23rd May, 1741. Witnesses, John Ingram, servant to said Patrick Calder, and said Henry Waddell. 23/5/1741

1748 GD332/91 Extract Registered Tack, dated at Nethertown 14th October, 1748, by Patrick Calder of Reidfoord to Robert Nimmo, tenant in Blackridge, of the Homelane lands of Nethertown and Duraw, with houses, etc., as presently possessed by said Patrick Calder and John Young, in Duraw, all in the parish of Muiravenside (excepting from this tack the 4 ridges of croftland in the north croft east from the thorn well and two dales distant from the west side of said croft, the weste laigh room with the whole lofted rooms of the high dwelling-house of Nethertown, the middle caill bed in the south yard of Nethertown and the wester north yard in Nethertown, with the stable at the north end of the Nethertown barn) for 13 years from entry thereto as follows, viz., to the arable land at Martinmas next, and to the houses, grass and yards at Whitsunday next thereafter, at the rental of 425 merks yearly payable by equal portions, the first term's portion at Whitsunday next and the other term's payment at Martinmas thereafter and so forth termly, and further said Robert Nimmo binds himself to plough yearly for said Patrick Calder in due season the 4 ridges of croft land above reserved and harrow the same, lead home the growth thereon and set it in the Nethertown barnyard, carry his growing to the kiln and Nook miln, and back from the same to the Nethertown, and lead out the said Patrick Calder's 'fulzie' (manure) yearly to said 4 ridges, without fee or reward, as also to graze a cow yearly to said Patrick Calder upon Nethertown and herd her with the rest of the cows grazing thereon, and to furnish him a horse to ride on when he must necessarily go about his business; and it is agreed betwixt the parties that said Patrick Calder shall have liberty to thresh his growing above-mentioned yearly in the Nethertown barn, 80 loads of coal to be carried yearly to him by said Robert Nimmo from the Muirheugh belonging to the Duke of Hamilton, 22 loads of coal from Mr McLeod's haugh, as also 2 dargs of peats led yearly to Nethertown from Drumrother moss, in which moss said Robert Nimmo shall have liberty to cast his peats where his master appoints, as also one acre of bent for divots at the east end of Wainridge belonging to his master, and said Robert Nimmo binds himself to labour the lands orderly and not waste or wear out the same, maintain and uphold the houses in his possession and to leave them in as good condition as at entry, the master always paying for the great timber that shall be needed, as also to carry his whole grindable corns to the Nook miln to be ground thereat and pay malture and knaveship therefore, if it please said Robert Nimmo to build a kiln on said lands said Patrick Calder binds himself to aliment the masons and pay their wages as also to provide timber, said Robert Nimmo to lead the stones, timber and lime, and perform all the services by serving the masons and otherwise at building said kiln; and it is agreed that the master shall pay for 20 loads of lime yearly to be carried by the tenant and laid on the lands, the tenant always laying 20 loads of lime yearly to be carried by the tenant and laid on the lands, the tenant always laying 20 loads of lime more thereon yearly at his own charges; as also the tenant shall have payment for his fulzie left on the lands the year of his removal and shall pay his master for the fulzie he receives at his entry as the same shall be ascertained by two men, one to be chosen by the master and the other by the tenant; and it is agreed that the tenant shall have liberty the year of his removal to transport off the ground the half of his pease fodder of the year's crop and the fodder of 10 bolls of oats; as also the tenant is to be free of this tack at the end of the first five years thereof, he intimating his intention thereof half a year before; and the tenant shall not dig and carry away any earth out of the yards, and shall allow the next entrant tenant room for men and horse for labouring the lands the first year of that tenant's possession; all under penalty of £4 Sterling by either party failing. Registered in the Books of Council and Session 29th April, 1754. Witnesses, John Young, smith in Duraw and Henry Waddell, writer in Edinburgh, (the writer of the tack). 14/10/1748

Note: This place came to be part of the estate of Muiravonside as a consequence of a change taking place in the course of the River Avon. Formally it had belonged to the lands of Carriber in West Lothian. Legally it became part of the superiority of Muiravonside by an excambion in the early eighteenth century between Dalziel of Neuk and Hay of Carriber. Nevertheless, it had been held as a feu by Muiravonside prior to this. Inchgarvy was exchanged for a piece of land called ‘Whinnie grain’ which pertained to the superiority of Muiravonside.

For the old Priory we must proceed up the Avon to the vicinity of Manuel village. The ruins, consisting simply of a portion of the western gable wrapt in a thick wood-warp of ivy, stand on the north bank of the river, in a haugh on the farm occupied by Mr Inglis. The fragment, which is of hewn-stone, and elegant in its simplicity, contains an arched-door, or gateway, with three small Gothic windows over it; and above these a circular one is placed. In 1730, however, the "chapel" was comparatively entire. There was the eastern gable perfect in form, with a high triple-arched window; also the south wall, which, in addition to a central door, had another close to the eastern gable, with three windows overhead. And it is said part of the south wall of the church was standing until the beginning of 1788, when, the river having risen to an unusual height, it was swept away by the violence of the flood with part of the bank that had been used as a cemetery. Luckily, we have all the facts at hand regarding the history of this local relic of monasticism, and therefore need not be reminded, by way of caution, of the famous pretorium of old Monkbars. The Manuel nunnery, as we find from reliable relics, was founded by Malcolm IV. in 1156, and consecrated to the Virgin Mary. It was possessed, too, originally by Cistercian nuns—an order that derived its name from a district in Burgundy called Citeaux, where the first convent of that austere school was founded by one St Robert, but which, of course, was simply an offshoot of the great Benedictine epoch. In 1292 the Prioress Christina swore fealty to Edward I., who, as we learn from a writ of his 'own, visited "Manewer on the 24th October, 1301. Alice, Christina's successor, also swore fealty to Edward, at Linlithgow, in 1296. Her tomb was to be seen here, some years ago bearing her figure with a distaff—an unusual instrument in the hands of a princess. The nunnery had possessions in the shires of Edinburgh and Ayr, as well as in those of Linlithgow and Stirling; and when the list of ecclesiastical revenues was drawn up in 1562, those of Manuel amounted to fifty-two pounds fourteen shillings and eightpence Scots, three chalders of here, seven chalders of meal, with a large quantity of salmon. The graveyard lay immediately beneath the nunnery, close upon a slight bend of the river; but for years the water current has been incessantly washing away the very foundations of the monastic burial-ground.

1707 GD332/48 Decret of the Barony Court of Morvingside held at the Nuick before William Bell of Aventoun bailie of said barony, in the complaint at the instance of Patrick Broun portioner of Woodside, against John Dick of Middlequarter Margaret Mershell in Candieheid and James Dick, her son, tenants of said John Dick, mentioning that the loan at the back of the Candie, which leads to Morwingside muir, past memory of man has always been a common loan to the muir for the use of the feuars and tenants of the barony of Morwingside and was never encroached upon till of late said John Dick and his tenants have encroached upon said loan and tilled up a great part thereof and sown it with corn and stopped the common passage to the muir, and threaten particularly to stop said Patrick Broun's carts, for which offence said John ought to be severely fined and punished, and said loan declared to be common, and said John and his tenants discharged to encroach thereupon for the future, and also said Margaret Mershell and her son have encroached upon pursuer's hedge and filled up his 'how furrow' with their ground and encroached upon a 'march baulk' in the Candie betwixt the pursuer's lands and theirs, for which they ought to be fined. Parties compeared and the bailie after hearing evidence finds and declares that the loan has been a common loan for forty years and upwards without interruption and that the pursuer and other heritors and tenants of the south side of the barony have been in use to pass there through with 'horse slaids carts etc.' to the muir, and that the pretended interruption alleged was not legal nor proven by sufficient witnesses, and also finds that said John Dick and Margaret Mershell and James Dick, her son, his tenants, have encroached upon and tilled said loan, therefore he fines them £50 Scots and ordains the loan to be common in all time coming for the passage of said Patrick Broun and other heritors and tenants of the south side of the barony to the muir with 'horse slaids carts etc.', and also finds said Margaret Mershell and her son have filled up the pursuer's 'How furrow' with their ground and encroached upon the march 'baulk' in Candie betwixt the pursuer and them, and therefore fines them £20 Scots; because the pursuer and defenders compearing personally on 3rd July, 1706, the pursuer adduced the witnesses following:

John Calder of Hill, aged 60 or thereby, who deponed that for some years he had seen the pursuer and his father lead their 'elding' by the loan and never knew that it was stopped till now, and that said John Dick and his tenants have tilled up the old road, and further deponed that Margaret Mershell and her son have filled up the pursuer's 'How furrow' with their ground, and also that he had visited the march 'baulk' in the Candie about two years ago and at that time Margaret Mershell's plough had encroached upon the march 'baulk'.

Patrick Calder of Ridfuird aged 58 or thereby, deponed that since he remembers he has known the road to be a common road for the use of the barony to lead their 'elding' from the muir, and deponed similarly to preceding witnesses. Archibald Taylour portioner of Candie, aged 60 or thereby, and Robert Taylour in Seattries, aged 60 years and more, deponed likewise. The case was again called on 14th May, 1706, when pursuer compeared personally and defenders with Sebastian Henderson, their procurator, who produced John Dick's charter, dated 8th May, 1666, granted by Andrew Ross of Nuick of the lands of Candie and Burnpyke, and contended that the servitude libelled ought to be instructed by the pursuer by writ, and that servitude for forty years by use and wont had not been proved, and if such should be proved the defender offers to prove interruption within the forty years. The pursuer thereupon again adduced witnesses, viz., Robert Taylour in Seattries, who further deponed that he had known the road to have been a common road to the muir 40 years past and that the road went west by the foot of John Dick's land to the muir; and Thomas Mershell elder, in Plumb, aged 60 or thereby, who deponed that he had known the road in use likewise for 50 years. The bailie assigned to the defenders 31st May, 1706, to prove interruption, whereupon they adduced the witnesses following, viz., George Muire [Muir], sometime of Dykraw [Dykeraw], aged 40, who deponed that about 11 years since he was John Broun's tenant and was going to the muir with horses by the road in debate when he was interrupted by Margaret Mershell Compstoun's tenant, and that Pursuer's father told him when he took his land that he had no passage by said road, and while he was tenant he passed not by said road but another way through Broun's own ground. Robert Carlaw, in Gillmeadowland, aged 40 or thereby, deponed that being pursuer's servant about 26 years ago he was interrupted on said road by William Dick, Compstoun's tenant, and John Broun deceased, was not allowed to pass that way until he took a piece of land from Dick, and then they passed that road by Dick's tolerance, and that before the land was taken Broun and his servants went to the muir by another road through his own land.

Memorial: Alexander MacDonald Esq. of Largie and his curators ... Brother German and apparent heir of deceased James Macdonald of Largie against the Creditors of the said James Macdonald.

Mrs MacDonald of Largie succeeded to the estate of Muiravonside as heiress of her uncle Alexander MacLeod Esq. of Muiravonside who never married. she executed a destination of that estate in favour of herself and her husband, Mr Charles Lockhart and the longest liver of them; and to their children in fee. Mrs MacDonald died several years ago; and her eldest son, James MacDonald predeceased his father, who enjoyed the estate in virtue of his right of liferent until his death ... Feb 1796

Upon Mr Lockhart's death it was found that the estate was burdened with considerable debts contracted by Mrs Macdonald, the fiar. It was therefore judged necessary that he should raise the process of sale of the estate and ranking of the creditors, in terms of the act of parliament 1695, cap. 24

[4] The half of the lands of Compston and Mill thereof; the merkland of Compston called Hungryhill and part of the lands of Compston called Newhouse and Easter and Wester Drafins in the parish of Muiravonside

Held of the Magistrates of the City of Edinburgh as representing Trinity Hospital, Edinburgh.

The Writs in the progress of Titles to this property (which is of small value) do not shew the tenure, or what may be the yearly payment or casualties

Note 1: The solicitor who drew this up suggested the following: that the mansion House & offices, the Garden and Home Fields all belonged with [1], as did the railway sidings at Drumbowie, Woodend and Policy ground, half of Castlehill farm, the farm of Seatrees and Drumbowie Parks, 30 acres of Bowhouse, and possibly the ground occupied by the collier's houses; the other half of Castlehill lay with [4] & [5], while some cottages at the Loan and two at Newpark plus a stripe of land [an old rig presumably] at Wainrigg are assumed to belong either to [4] or [5]; the bulk of Bowhouse lay with [2] & [3], as did the sawmill at Bowhouse.

Note 2: The total area of the estate in the twentieth century was slightly in excess of 658 acres, but it should be noted that this did not include the area covered by either the railway or feus.

1710 GD332/54 Agreement by James Earl of Linlithgow, superior of the lands and baronies of Manuell, Walkmilintown, Myrehead, Almond and Ballinbreich, in the parish of Morowingsyde which have right to the commonty and muir of Morowingsyde and also for his vassals; Christian Eleis, relict of Colonel John Dalzell of Neuck, for herself, and as tutrix to Thomas Dalzell, her son, and Agnes Dalzell, her daughter, also heritors and superiors of the lands and barony of Morowingsyde which also have a right to said commonty and muir, and also for her vassals; William Bell, sheriff-clerk and town-clerk of Linlithgow, heritor and superior of the lands and barony of Manuel-Kerr alias Mannuall Foulis, which also have right to said commonty and muir, and for his vassals, and also for the heritors of Compstoun, Newmilne and Hungriehill whereby for the division of said commonty and muir they have chosen William Nimmo, portioner of Bridgehouse, John Tennent of Burnhead, John Wyse, in Sheelhill, and Andrew Russell, in Newdyck, or any three of them as arbiters to consider the several valuations and valued rents of said lands and to divide the muir and comontry in three parts relative to said lands and to be the property of said respective parties. Dated at Linlithgow 16 October, 1710. Witnesses to the subscription of said Earl, George Menzies, baillie of Falkirk, and James Lawson, servitor to said Earl; and to the subscriptions of said Christian Eleis and William Bell, John Storie, merchant, and Alexander Rule, Baxter, burgesses of Linlithgow. Follows the Decreet-arbitral. The arbiters appointed Robert Walker, in Newbiggings, 'metster' [measurer] and find that the common muir extends to 1154 acres arable and 325 acres moss and flow. The valuation of the baronies of Ballinbreich, Almond and Manuell, belonging to said Earl in property and superiority, with part of the lands of Manuall-Kerr, which belongs in property to John Smith of Manuellrig, is £2594 7s. 2d. The valuation of the barony of Morrowingside belonging to said Thomas Dalzell in property and superiority is £848 8s. 10d. The valuation of Manuell-Kerr belonging in property and superiority to said William Bell, and said lands of Compstoun, is 532 11s. Total £3975 7s. Each £100 of valuation will get of arable land 28 acres 3 roods 16 falls, and of flow and moss 8 acres 20 falls; so that said Earl gets 753 acres arable and 213 acres moss, Thomas Dalzell gets 246 acres arable and 69 acres moss, William Bell gets 155 acres arable and 43 acres moss. The arbiters have accordingly set march-stones in order to divide said common muir beginning (with the portion to belong to said barony of Morrowingside) at the Hair stones on the southside of the muir where one hewn stone is infixed at the back side of the yard of the dwelling-house at said Hairstones presently possessed by Alexander Black, from thence leading northward to a hewn march-stone infixed upon the north-side of Drumbrother, from thence leading northwards through the moss to a hewn march-stone on the southside of the Wainrig, from thence bearing north northwest to the top of the wainrig where there is another hewn march-stone infixed, and which is the march-stone betwixt the baronies of Morrowingside and Manuellker upon the west, and from thence leading straight east and by north of the muir dyke upon the southside of the Whiterig yeat [gate] where there is a hewn march-stone infixed with several other hewn stones infixed upon the said straight line, and from thence leading along by the muir dyke to the first march-stone infixed at the said Hairstones. As also the muir and moss belonging heritable to Manuellker and Compstoun (excepting John Smith's valuation thereof in said barony added to the Earl of Linlithgow's valuation as above) begins at the said westmost and northmost march stone of the barony of Morrowingside and from thence running straight north, northwest over the east end of the Crosscrews to the southside of the little Grayrige where there is a hewn march stone infixed and which is the northmost march of the barony of Manuellker from thence turning straight east and by north to the muir dyke where there is a hewn march-stone infixed, from thence turning southward along by the muir dyke into the hewn march stone infixed upon the north side of the dyke or burn of Craigend and which march-stone is the southmost march of the barony of Manuellker upon the east and thence turns west and by south through the corner of the Bullenmoss to the east end of Blackrige where there is a hewn march-stone infixed, thence turning south to the march-stone of the barony of Morrowingside upon the southwest end of Drumbowie rig and the lands set apart for the Earl of Linlithgow and his vassals upon the Drumbowie rig lies straight west from the present roum of Whiterig betwixt the southmost marches on the east quarter of the barony of Manuellker and northmost marches upon the east quarter of the barony of Morrowingside upon the south and north parts, the muir dyke on the east and the said march-stone on the southwest end of Drumbowie rig and the march-stone upon the east end of the said Blackrig upon the west parts; and the rest of the said whole muir and moss except what is within the foresaid dimensions allocated for the baronies of Morrowingside and Manuellker and lands of Compstoun the arbiters find that it belongs to said Earl and his vassals and the said John Smith: and therefore the arbiters declare find and ordain that the said 246 acres of arable ground and 69 acres of moss lying on the south side of said muir next to the said lands and barony of Morrowingside and marched as aforesaid pertain and belong in all time coming in property to said Thomas Dalzell and his vassals; and said 155 acres of arable land and 43 acres of moss lying on the southeast part of said muir next to the said barony of Manuellker (except what is allocated to said Earl of Linlithgow as above mentioned) and marched as above specified pertain and belong in all time coming in property to said William Bell and his vassals and the heritors of Compstoun [Compstone]; and the said 753 acres of arable land and 213 acres of moss being the rest of said whole common muir nor marched and appropriated to said baronies of Morrowingside and Mannuellker and lands of Compstoun pertain and belong in all time coming in property to said Earl of Linlithgow and his vassals and said John Smith, of which there are 71 acres of arable land lying west from the roum of Whiterig marched and set apart to said Earl in part of his share of said muir. The forenamed persons and their vassals having right formerly to said commonty and their successors, their factors, tenants, tacksmen, servants, and others in their names shall have power to till, labour and manure their respective proportions of said commonty as divided, and to do all other acts of property thereupon by building houses, dykes and such like in all respects as if the same had been from the beginning divided and joined to their respective interests and former properties. It is specially provided that these presents shall not stop any highway, ways or roads that presently are and have been in use through said lands. Each heritor shall have free entry to said lands through those parts that shall belong to others and lie betwixt their former possession of property. The premises are to be implemented mutually under penalty of 1,000 merks. Written by Joseph Bartlay, servitor to said William Bell. Dated at Falkirk 11 August 1711. Witnesses, Alexander Watt, maltman in Falkirk, William Boig, servitor to John Morisone writer there, John Cowie, indweller there, and George Menzies clerk of Falkirk. 2 copies. 16/10/1710

Decret of the Barony Court of Morrowingside held at the Nuick [Neuck] before William Bell of Aventoun bailie of said barony, in the complaint at the instance of Patrick Broun [Brown], portioner of Woodside, against John Dick of Middlequarter Margaret Mershell in Candieheid and James Dick, her son, tenants of said John Dick, mentioning that the loan at the back of the Candie, which leads to Morrowingside muir, past memory of man has always been a common loan to the muir for the use of the feuars and tenants of the barony of Morrowingside and was never encroached upon till of late said John Dick and his tenants have encroached upon said loan and tilled a great part thereof and sown it with corn and stopped the common passage to the muir, and threaten particularly to stop said Patrick Broun's [Brown] carts, for which offence said John ought to be severely fined and punished, and said loan declared to be common, and said John and his tenants discharged to encroach thereupon for the future, and also said Margaret Mershell and her son have encroached upon pursuer's hedge and filled up his 'how furrow' with their ground and encroached upon a 'march baulk' in the Candie betwixt the pursuer's lands and theirs, for which they ought to be fined. Parties compeared and the bailie after hearing evidence finds and declares that the loan has been a common loan for forty years and upwards without interruption and that the pursuer and other heritors and tenants of the south side of the barony have been in use to pass there through with 'horse slaids carts etc.' to the muir, and that the pretended interruption alleged was not legal nor proven by sufficient witnesses, and also finds that said John Dick and Margaret Mershell and James Dick, her son, his tenants, have encroached upon and tilled said loan, therefore he fines them £50 Scots and ordains the loan to be common in all time coming for the passage of said Patrick Broun [Brown] and other heritors and tenants of the south side of the barony with 'horse slaids carts etc.', and also finds said Margaret Mershell and her son have filled up the pursuer's 'How furrow' with their ground and encroached upon the march 'baulk' in Candie betwixt the pursuer and them, and therefore fines them £20 Scots; because the pursuer and defenders compearing personally on 3rd July, 1706, the pursuer adduced the witnesses following: John Calder of Hill, aged 60 or thereby, who deponed that for some years he had seen the pursuer and his father lead their 'elding' by the loan and never knew that it was stopped till now, and that said John Dick and his tenants have tilled up the old road, and further deponed that Margaret Mershell and her son have filled up the pursuer's 'How furrow' with their ground, and also that he had visited the march 'baulk' in the Candie about two years ago and at that time Margaret Mershell's plough had encroached upon the march 'baulk'. Patrick Calder of Ridfuird aged 58 or thereby, deponed that since he remembers he has known the loan to be a common road for the use of the barony to lead.
their 'elding' from the muir, and deponed similarly to preceding witnesses. Archibald Taylour portioner of Candie, aged 60 or thereby, and Robert Taylour in Seattries, aged 60 years and more, deponed likewise. The case was again called on 14th May, 1706, when pursuer comparedd personally and defenders with Sebastian Henderson, their procurator, who produced John Dick’s charter, dated 8th May, 1666, granted by Andrew Ross of Nuick [Neuck] of the lands of Candie and Burnpyke, and contended that the servitude libelled ought to be instructed by the pursuer by writ, and that servitude for forty years by use and wont had not been proved, and if such should be proved the defender offers to prove interruption within the forty years. The pursuer thereupon again adduced witnesses, viz., Robert Taylour in Seattries, who further deponed that he had known the road to have been a common road to the muir 40 years past and that the road went west by the foot of John Dick’s land to the muir; and Thomas Mershell elder, in Plumb, aged 60 or thereby, who deponed that he had known the road in use likewise for 50 years. The bailie assigned to the defenders 31st May, 1706, to prove interruption, whereupon they adduced the witnesses following, viz., George Muire [Muir], sometime of Dykraw [Dykeraw], aged 40, who deponed that about 11 years since he was John Broun’s [Brown] tenant and was going to the muir with horses by the road in debate when he was interrupted by Margaret Mershell Compstoun’s tenant, and that Pursuer's father told him when he took his land that he had no passage by said road, and while he was tenant he passed not by said road but another way through Broun's [Brown] own ground. Robert Carlaw, in Gillimeadowland, aged 40 or thereby, deponed that being pursuer’s servant about 26 years ago he was interrupted on said road by William Dick, Compstoun’s tenant, and John Broun [Brown], deceased, was not allowed to pass that way until he took a piece of land from Dick, and then they passed that road by Dick's tolerance, and that before the land was taken Broun [Brown] and his servants went to the muir by another road through his own land. 8/7/1707

1726 GD332/64 Minutes in action by Mr John McClowd advocate, against the vassals of Murevenysde. McCleod repeats his charge founded on a decreet before the baron bailie of Mureavenside and craved that the letters might be found orderly proceeded. Boswell (advocate for the suspenders - the vassals) repeats his reasons for suspension: (1) That the baron bailie had committed iniquity in sustaining process against them for the multures of their whole grindable corns, since neither they nor their predecessors were in use to pay mulfure for any of their corns except oats, and that past memory of man, and as thillage of the growing corns in their charters is limited to use and wont the practice is determined that only oats are astricted. (2) That they had prescribed immunity as to all other grain except oats. (3)
That the bere not being ground at the mill must be liable to a less multure. (4) That the teinds are not deducted although they should be excluded as the vassals had right to them through the Earl of Callender. Hay and Craigie (advocates for the charger - McClowd) answer that in the charters granted by him as superior holding of the Crown the reddendo contains a restriction of all growing corns to his mill of the barony, and that 'use and wont' does not apply to the grain but to the quantity of multure which is not expressed in the charter. The clause of astriction was so extensive as to include even teinds, the only exception being seed and horse corn. Indeed the vassals beyond memory of man have paid multure for stock and teind. The Lord (of Session) finds the suspenders' whole corns stricted and prescription cannot run against their charters, that 'used and wont' only refers to multures as to the quantity of which suspenders are ordained to condescend; and as to the teinds makes avizandum to the Lords. 28/6/1726

1727 GD332/65 Contract between Mr John Macleod of Muiravonside advocate, superior of the barony, on the one part, and Andrew Dick of Compstoun Mr John Henderson of Candy, Patrick Calder

Patrick Brown and John Taylor, portioners of Woodside, John Binny Alexander Miller and James Schaw portioners of Coxhill, John Reid and Alexander Brown, portioners of Candyhead and Archibald Taylor, portioner of Candyhead vassals of said barony, on the other part, narrating that there is a process of multures at present before the Lords of Council and Session between them, and that several interlocutors have been pronounced in favour of said Mr John Macleod, and now seeing he is willing to discharge said process and hereby discharges the same and all bygone multures preceding the term of Martinmas 1726, therefore the vassals bind themselves to pay to said Mr John Macleod, and his heirs and successors, superiors of said barony, 3 bolls 2 pecks of beir, 8 pecks peas or peas and beans yearly of the growth of their lands within the barony and that as additional feuduty as the same shall be apportioned among them according to their valuations, and to be paid as from Martinmas 1727 in lieu of multure of what beir and peas or beans they shall happen to sell of the growth of their lands, and they bind themselves to bring to the mill of the barony and grind there what beir, peas or beans they shall consume in their family, paying therefor 1/2 peck of the grain and 1/2 peck meal for each boll of beir and peas or beans so ground at said mill, and they bind themselves to grind at said mill their oats teinds (seed and horse corn excepted). Written by John Robertson, writer in Edinburgh. Dated at the Bridgend of Linlithgow 6th November, 1727; witnesses there, James Monteith of Milnhall,

Sighthill

Sighthill

Sighthill (stone coffins containing human remains found here in 1838, and 1852). A long narrow ridge of slightly elevated land, partly arable and partly wooded. Some few years since the N.E. face of the hill bore trace of having been fortified, the land is now cultivated, and all evidence of fortification entirely removed. It has, doubtless, been the scene of a conflict, from the number of stone coffins found at it at the time improvements were taking place on the Edinburgh & Glasgow Road which crosses it. Stone coffins have also been discovered in it at a more recent date, by workmen engaged in digging for gravel in the... adjacent gravel pit. All these coffins contained human remains. It is on the property of Wm Forbes Esq, Callendar House, Falkirk.

From a charter of 1496 comes “terras de Cumiston alias nuncupatas Manwell-rig cum molendino fullonis viz le Walkmyll”.1 The mill, along with part of the lands of Compston came into the possession of Trinity Collegiate Church in the early sixteenth century.2 A charter of 1545 is the last notice to have emerged for this mill.3

A waulk mill is the Scottish term for a fulling mill.

Avon Water

River Avon A long narrow river, which rises in the parish of Cumbernauld and empties itself into Firth of Forth, it forms the whole of the northern boundary of this parish, dividing it from Falkirk and Muiravonside, its banks are low, and its course sinuous and sluggish. Here are some few mills along it, but so far as is connected with this parish it assumes both an unimportant and uninteresting feature.

KILN HILLS  # SLM NS8573   NS859734 [1] – South
     NS858735 [1] - North

1860 OSNB  Kiln Hills Two small eminences on the farm of Balmulzier and Hillhead. The writer of the Statistics of this parish, calls these hills "Kill Hills", assumes it to have been the scene of a battle, and supposes the name to have originated from the number of persons then killed, and that the remains of a trench existed on them. All the authorities in the locality assert that these statements are incorrect, and that the same was derived from the number of malt kilns which existed along the sides of these clay hills some years back, and when smuggling was carried on on a large scale throughout the parish. The existence of the ditch they consider imaginary. The farmsteading of Balmulzier stands on the summit of the northern most hill, and is the property of Miss C Waddell, Balquhatston, the southern hill is the property of Mr John Waugh, Hillhead, Slamanan.

Mill of Slamannan Muir called Linmiln.

A group of buildings consisting of dwelling houses, two lint mills and offices. The dwelling houses are two stories, together with the offices. One of the mills is three stories, the other one. The mills and offices are slated and in good repair. The dwelling house thatched and in bad repair. Property and residence of Robert Inglis Esq. The machinery of the mills is propelled by water. The name appears to have been derived from a very fine Linn or waterfall on the stream adjacent to the buildings.

A small stone bridge of one arch spanning Linnmill Burn on the parish road a few chains south of Linn Mill. It is the property of the Heritors of the parish.

Consists of a dwelling house and wright's shop, one storey, slated and in good repair. Property and residence of Mr Robert Simpson.

A small stream which rises on the farm of Wester Burnhead, and after a course of about 4 miles, falls into the River Avon near Newland Mill. It forms the boundary between the counties of Stirling and Linlithgow for the general part of its course. There is a very beautiful waterfall on it, upwards of 60 feet, close by Linn Mill.

Note: this is the lower reaches of Drumtassie Burn.

St Laurence's Well. A small spring well in the village of Slamannan & of considerable antiquity. Nothing is known about it further than that it is supposed to take its name from St Laurence, to which the church is dedicated. It is classed as a Holy Well.

High St Laurence Well A small spring well a little to the south-east of St Lawrence's Well and of more recent origin. It stands on rather higher ground than the former which has given to it the term "high". It is not classed as a Holy Well.

1860 OSNB Slamannan - A tolerable sized village built very irregular, situated near the northern extremity of the parish. Most of the house originally forming it are on storey, thatched and tenanted by agricultural labourers, but since the railway has been opened and the consequent working of the vast coalfield throughout the parish the importance of the village has considerably improved, both in size and appearance. A number of substantial two storey houses having been erected, the ground floors of which are used as shops. There is the parish church, school and manse, together with the manse and school of the Free Church, Post Office, and two public houses, in addition to the numerous shops. There is a small round artificial eminence a short distance north of the parish church, said to be one of the ancient seats of judication, and a little to the east of the same is the Holy Well of St Lawrence, to which saint the old parish church of Slamannan was dedicated. These are the only antiquities which the village is said to possess. A small gas work has been established in the village during the past year, so that the interior of most of the houses is now lighted with gas. The parish is called Slamannan and St Lawrence. The former is generally used and the latter is only found in the records of Session, and in the presentation of the Crown "the church and parish of Slamannan otherwise St Lawrence". It is highly probable that St Lawrence was not the original name of the parish, but only of the church, and the lands adjoining to it; for a little to the south-east of the church, there is an excellent spring of water which still goes by the name of St Lawrence's Well. As places of worship were frequently denominated from particular saints, St Lawrence would appear to have been the titular saint of this parish. But the etymology of the name Slamannan is, like that of many other proper names, uncertain, and merely conjectural. Some writers have supposed that the word signifies Slender River, that is "place on slender part of river". Others have derived it from the following circumstance; that when the Earl of Callendar sent to plough? a certain portion of the parish (then a moor) he inquired of the stewart on his return how it would work, to which the answer was, "It slay both man and mare". Others have supposed that from its vicinity to the Caledonian forest, it had often been the scene of conflict. In proof of which, there is a rising ground, a little to the south of the church, called Castlehill, where a fort once stood, but of which no vestige remains, excepting the farmhouse, which still goes by the name Castle-hill, and a little to the eastward of this hill, there is another rising ground where there are still some reains of a trench, and which goes by the name of Kill-hills, because of the numbers which were supposed to have been slain there. Besides there were adjacent to these, two cones of earth about forty yards separate, which are supposed to have been raised as monuments of peace, like the two at Dunipace. One of these still remains, and is evidently artificial; the other was levelled and the church of St Lawrence built upon it; the former still goes by the name of the Moat. The names of these places, with others of similar import, such as Balcastle, Balquhatston & c, confirm the belief that these grounds have been the arena of many a severe battle. In the Session records the name is always spelt Slamanna dropping the latter n. It is highly probable that the name is of Gaelic origin, purporting brown, or grey, or long heath, for the parish must have been originally covered with heath.

"This parish is bounded on the west and south-west, by the parish of New Monkland; on the east and south-east, by the parish of Torphichen; and on the north and north-east, by Muiravonside, and Falkirk. At the north-west extremity there is a point where three counties meet, viz Stirling, Dumbarton and Lanark; and on the south, there is another point where the counties of Stirling and Lanark meet with the county of Linlithgow" (Statistical Account).

There is no detached portions of this parish; nor are there any detached portions of any other parish situated within it. The parish contains about 7148 statute acres.
