2023-4 WEB CO-ORDINATOR'S REPORT

We have had another successful year for the website.

I am happy to report that there have been no security incidents or technical difficulties, and the website has functioned in a smooth and reliable manner. There have been no issues of note.

We have had no major changes, however some layout improvements have seen the Bibliography and Useful Links sections become more user-friendly through easier navigation and a clearer structure.

I would like to thank everyone who has contributed material for the website. Special thanks to Liz Curtis who continues to expand and update the Useful Links section on the website. Also, a big thank you to Dr Alan G. James, who sends in an updated version of BLITON at least once a year, and sometimes more often. BLITON is one of the most visited resources on the website, and the 2024 edition was uploaded on the website in April.

In terms of the future, we have a number of ideas, including a fully automated conference-booking process with an integrated payment system, however any changes will be carefully considered before implementation in order to ensure that our visitors continue to enjoy the website confidently and comfortably. As the present booking system works without issue for most people, we will continue to use it until we are certain that we have an equally reliable solution.

As always, please do share any comments or suggestions regarding the website via the contact form <https://spns.org.uk/contact>. Please also consider subscribing to our e-mail news system via the forms found on every page of the website so that we could inform you of upcoming events, publications, and updates as they come.
